Suit Case in Which Baby's Body Was Found After Little One Had Been Beaten to Death

TELEPHONE CLUE TO BABY SLAYER

Police of Providence Seeking to Trace Mysterious Message Referring to Child's Death—Medical Examiner Thinks Boy Victim Was Beaten to Death Before Body Was Placed in Suit Case.

SPECIAL TO THE BOSTON AMERICAN.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 10.—The police of Providence are to-day on the trail of the mysterious man who, late yesterday, telephoned to police headquarters that a baby boy about eighteen months old had suddenly disappeared about a week ago from a house in Benefit street.

While Inspectors John J. O'Malley and Louis F. Godfrey were sent by Chief Inspector C. S. Horton to hunt up a house of the number ndicated, and while the officers found no such house on Benefit street, they attach the greatest significance to this clue.

I is believed that the man who telephoned the police headquarters knew more about the case than has yet been disclosed, and to-day every effort is being made to discover who the man was. The telephone exchange is helping the authorities to find up from what telephone the mysterious man called.

BABY BEATEN TO DEATH.

That the eighteen-months-old baby boy whose bruised body was found in an old greenish-colored suit case in the yard in the rear of No. 104 Prospect street on Tuesday morning was actually beaten to death by being caught by his legs and dashed against chairs, tables and walls, is the opinion of Medical Examiner Jay Perkins, who has just finished his autopsy in the case.

In this startling belief the Medical Examiner is supported by Chief Inspector Horton of the detective bureau. The police are to-day working harder than ever to unravel this, the fifth case of child murder which has been rolled to their attention. They believe that a regular paid gang of child assassins is plying a lucrative business in this part of the country. Whether this gang works here or is located in one of the nearer cities and sends the dead bodies of murdered children here to mislead the police is yet to be developed.

In the meantime the police have made a house to house canvass of the dwellings on Prospect street and no one has been able to tell them of seeing any person carrying the old suit case in which the pretty child's body was found.

In addition, every pawn shop in the city has been visited in hopes that some dealer would be able to tell the police of selling an old suit case. So pawnbroker here has sold any case resembling that found by C. H. Jefferd Tuesday morning in the yard of the rear of No. 104 Prospect street in which the child's mutilated body had been placed.

WORK ON NEW THEORY.

The police now are commencing to work on the theory that the crime was committed possibly in some of the nearby towns and cities and later the murderer thrust the baby into the old suit case, and under cover of night rode into Providence and placed the case in the Prospect street house yard.

To a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter Dr. Perkins said: "The child was one mass of bruises. There covered almost the entire upper half of the body, and was more pronounced on the left side of the head, neck and shoulders. On the ankles there were several impressions resembling finger marks, and it is my opinion that the child was grasped by the slayer at the feet and swung at random through the air, striking articles of furniture in the room. This accounts for the exaggerated bruises on the head and shoulders. These injuries were the cause of death.

"After the child was dead I think that the assassin secreted it in a feather bed to hide the crime. This theory is brought out by the fact that when found the child was covered with fine feathers, which would not have clung to the child had it not been about some time. From the impression of the finger marks I could not say whether they were the marks made by the hand of a woman or a man, but suffice it to say it was a most horrible crime."

Fifth Recent Child Murder.

The fact that this is the fifth child murder which has been brought to light within a comparatively recent time, is adding incentive to the police in their efforts to run down the murderer or murderers and put an end to child-murder in this State.

The East side of the city seems to have been selected by the criminals as the best locality in which to dispose of the lifeless bodies of the slain children, several of those having been found in this part of the city, while some were found in the North End.

While the police have no tangible clew on which to work, they are confident that in their visits to the pawnshops and secondhand stores they have secured some information that may eventually be turned to service.

Captain Mowry of the Police Department believes that the more publicity that is given the case the better it will be for the force, for recalls the Simon Geary dress suit case mystery of Boston, and the fact that it was really the publicity given the case and the work that the newspapers did that eventually led to the unraveling of that great mystery.

Medical Examiner Perkins has made public the results of the postmortem examination which he made on the body of the child. Bruises on the left side of the head and neck were found while the spleen and one kidney showed evidences of having been injured by external violence, as they were somewhat bruised. The sappiness of the little one's body and the comparative pliability of its frail bones, perhaps prevented their being broken when the little one was swung by its heels until it was literally beaten to death.

Hiding Place Well Chosen.

The yard in which the suit case containing the little body was found was well-suited to its being hidden there by the murderer or murderers. It is surrounded by high and protected by the driving rain of the night and early morning.

The suit case was found by Mr. Jefferd in the yard in the rear of Prospect street near Hidden street near a fence at the rear of the premises and close to the stable. Hidden street which well deserves the name, is a short street connecting Benefit and Congress streets. It runs nearly parallel to Olney street, one block North. At night Hidden street is but but one feeble gas light which serves rather to reveal the darkness of the place rather than to give light.

Nine-cent milk is being investigated to-day by the Federal grand jury now in session. Milk producers and contractors thronged the corridors of the court house this afternoon, summoned by District Attorney Moran to tell what they know about the recent rise in the price of milk and its causes.

The whole board of directors of the Milk Producers Union was subpoenaed. The following were present and gave their testimony: President Staunton H. Abbott of West Milton, Mass.; Secretary William A. Hunter of Worcester; Charles E. Sage of North Brookfield; Alonzo Davis of Canaan, N. H.; John B. Marcou of Princeton; John K. Allen of Northboro, Vt.

Newspaper men who have investigated the milk situation and interviewed producers and contractors were subpoenaed. The big Boston contractors are also understood to have been subpoenaed. A. H. Granstein and W. A. Granstein were at the court house, ready to go before the Grand Jury.

Claiming that the total voting strength of last Saturday's Democratic State "convention," at Springfield, was but 731, and that they now have the sworn affidavits of more than 400 properly accredited delegates, who would have voted for Whitney, the Henry M. Whitney forces in the Old South Building declared to-day that they look forward with complete confidence to the result of the hearing to be begun on morrow before the Ballot Law Commissioners.

The Bartlett leaders laught at their claims. "The State Committee," they say, "has between 400 and 500 credentials, surrendered at the door by regularly chosen delegates to the convention. We have no fear of the outcome."

The Bartlett people will not attempt to issue a Lieutenant-Governor candidate nor a Secretary of State candidate until the Ballot Law Commissioner have decided whether Bartlett or Whitney is the regular nominee of the Democratic party. The vacancies caused by the withdrawal of John Alden Thayer of Worcester and Odilon Z. E. Chaput of Holyoke, nominated for the same place on the Whitney ticket, will then be filled by a Western Massachusetts man and a Northeastern Massachusetts man, respectively.

Look for Early Decision.

Both sides look for a decision from the Commission by Saturday night. They base this expectation on the fact that 5 o'clock next Monday afternoon marks the expiration of the time when vacancies may be filled in the lists of officials to be voted for by the entire State.

General Bartlett's case before the Commission will be handled by George L. Mayberry, long a leader of the Middlesex bar, for several terms Mayor of Waltham and now practicing in Boston and Waltham. On the Whitney side are former Attorney-General Herbert E. Parker, who made the Guild nomination speech in the Republican State convention last Saturday, and Malachi L. Jennings, a master of the election laws.

Each camp admits its intense interest in the decision of the Ballot Law Commission on the Second Norfolk Senatorial convention, held at Dedham, a few days before the State convention, and conducted by Dan Kiley, who also presided at Springfield. The Whitney people say that Kiley's high-handedness at Dedham was merely in dress rehearsal for his unguilt cent performance at Springfield.

Affidavits for Whitney.

The Whitney people have abandoned the uniform style of affidavit. The experiences of individual delegates were so varied that there is now a separate affidavit for each case. The sworn certificates of town and city clerks from all over the Commonwealth will be shown declaring that on a certain date the party named was regularly chosen a delegate. These certificates are attached to the man's affidavit and the credential if he had it to get in.

If canvasses had been held everywhere, the number of delegates would have been 731. It is claimed, however, that seventy-six must be deducted from this number owing to the failure to canvass.

McNary, Keliher, Sullivan, Quincy and County were all on view at the Whitney quarters early to-day. A force of twenty clerks was on the jump. The Bartlett house was deserted save for two girl stenographers.

BARTLETT, WHITNEY READY FOR HEARING

RIVALS BOTH EXPRESS CONFIDENCE AT THE DECISION OF BAL LOT COMMISSION.

'PROCTOR' NOW CAMPAIGN CRY 'GAINST LODGE

"Where Is Missing Secretary," Asked Fitzgerald; Schofield's Caustic Counterchange.

Following close upon Mayor Fitzgerald's "Where is Proctor?" reply to United States Senator Lodge's caustic criticism of Boston's Democratic mismanagement, "Proctor" and his graft and his sentence and his flight from justice is thrown into the Senator's face by George A. Schofield, candidate for Lieutenant-Governor on the Henry M. Whitney ticket.

Senator Lodge had discussed the Springfield riot, wherein Bartlett and Whitney were both "nominated."

"The only difference between them," decided the Republican boss of Massachusetts, "is that Bartlett got there first."

Bob Proctor, sixteen years confidential man to Senator Lodge, was convicted of stealing a contribution to the Republican State Committee.

Schofield last night at Salem, standing side by side with Whitney, said: "Our senior Senator is a man whom every one would be glad to look up to if possible. Yet he says that there was no difference between Whitney and Bartlett except that Bartlett got in first. He ought to be ashamed of himself. He has no right to utter such an insult. It is not worthy of the man. His secretary was convicted of taking money to used his influence with Senator Lodge to get a man a place, and the money was not turned over to the State campaign fund. If I followed this line of argument I might say the only difference between Senator Lodge and his secretary was that the secretary got the money first. I won't use that line of argument. I don't think that secretary represents the people. I leave that argument to the statesman, the scholar in politics."

Henry Cabot Lodge's private secretary to-day is "J. a. Proctor," brother-in-law.

GIRL PAYS FINE FROM BIG ROLL OF BILLS

A big roll of bills was shown by Margaret Evans, a handsome young girl, when she was called upon to pay a fine of $10 for shoplifting to-day before judge Wentworth in the City Police Court. She was arrested yesterday in a Washington street department store.

PERKINS AND PRAY GUILTY OF ASSAULT

JURY RETURNS VERDICT IN COMPLAINT OF DEER ISLAND PRISONER.

Facing possible imprisonment in every jail in which they gave orders, Lorenzo D. Perkins and Orrin Pray, the Deer Island officers, stood before Judge Aiken in Superior Court to-day and heard a jury declare them guilty of assaulting a prisoner.

For two days they had heard Edward F. Kane, whom they had in charge a year ago, tell the jury how they went to him in his solitary confinement, and while he was sick and powerless in their hands, beat him and swung him up by his hands. They heard Lieutenant Hugh J. Lee read a statement which Pray had signed, saying that Pray assisted in swinging up the prisoner. They heard the corroborative testimony of a second convict.

For two and a half hours the jury deliberated over the evidence and then found a verdict of guilty, which was handed up to the court to-day under seal.

Kane's Story of Assault.

Here is Kane's own story of the assault, told on the witness stand, upon which the two officers—Perkins, the former deputy master, and Pray, the present night watchman—were found guilty:

"Perkins came into the cell and punched me two or three times with his fist. He grabbed me by the throat and choked me and knocked my head against the wall several times.

"Pray struck me in the chest with the handcuffs. One of them put the handcuffs on me. Perkins told Pray to get a rope. Pray came back with a rope and Perkins tied it to the handcuffs. Both of them hauled me up till my toes just touched the floor. While suspended Perkins ordered Pray to tie the rope to the cell door.

"Then he punched me twice in the stomach. After I had been in this position ten or fifteen minutes Perkins said to Pray 'Pull him up another notch, till his hands swell.' They piled me up and Perkins had the rope tied to the cell door. My body swung to and fro. Then I lost consciousness.

Pads for Mercy.

"What did you say to Perkins and Pray when they were stringing you up?" asked Assistant District Attorney McGettrick.

"I begged for mercy. I said, 'For God's sake take me down. I don't deserve this. I just came from a sick bed.'"

The two officers were somewhat unnerved when one of the jurymen inadvertently said "guilty" before the verdict was read. They had won another Deer Island officer acquitted of a charge of cruelty two days before, and they expected either acquittal or disagreement.

DENY DAVIES WAS IMPARTIAL

Reference is made by the Watch and Ward Society in its October report to the dismissing of Evan E. Davies, for years its prosecuting officer, but no further information is give nas to the reasem for the action.

The October report says: "The statement that our late agent was dropped because he was too active or impartial in his prosecution of offenders, is utterly without foundation. He was removed for causes which seemed adequate to directors but which it is not necessary to make public."

LEYLAND SHIP IS WITHDRAWN

The Leyland line today withdrew from the Boston service the 10,000-ton steamship Cretian, which has been engaged in the passenger and freight traffic between this port and Liverpool. The move is made because of the inability of the Boston & Albany road to furnish the company sufficient freight.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The Atlantic battleship fleet has returned from target practice off Cape Cod Bay badly shaken up by the firing of the heavy guns.

GIRL DYING, DR. HUDSON HELD IN BAIL

Dr. Arthur S. Hudson, of No. 210 Huntington avenue, who was arrested on a warrant charging illegal treatment of Miss Hilda Erickson, of Roxbury, was to-day held for examination October 31, by Judge Ely in the Municipal Court and admitted to bail in the sum of $2,500.

Martin Holtman, who was arrested at Westwood in connection with the case, was held in the same amount.

Miss Erickson is at the City Hospital in a serious condition.

According to the police story the girl hovered between life and death, for several days after the treatment, and she was removed from her home in Roxbury to the hospital.

Last night the officers went to Westwood, arrested Holtman and brought him into custody.

Umpires—Sheridan and O'Day.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—Manager Jennings says that his men will strike here their true gait this afternoon and wallop the Cubs in the third game of the series for the world's championship. Old Ty Cobb was evicted from the grounds for kicking yesterday, and says he will come back to-day bent upon giving the fans an even livelier exhibition of tooting than he gave yesterday.

Manager Jennings is sorely disappointed over the umpiring. He declares it the rankest he ever saw, and declares that if his men had been accorded such treatment all season as they have got in the big series here, they would never have landed the American League pennant.

Ty Cobb Nervous.

Jennings attributes the inability of his star hitter, Ty Cobb, to come to the front to slight nervousness, but he says that the champion American League hitter has got his bearings now, and that he will show the fans on the Polo Grounds here he is through with them.

The two teams will play here again to-day, and unless there is another tie or a postponement they will ride to Detroit, where they will line up to-morrow and Saturday. If the Cubs don't win four straight both clubs will return to this city for a game on Monday, which is expected to prove the biggest money getter of the season if it is played.

Manager Chance of the National League pennant collectors will most likely send Carl Lundgren to the rubber this afternoon, while Ed Siever will most likely do the carving for the Tigers.

The home team is a 10 to 8 favorite for the series now.

MERGER PROBE IS OUTLINED FOR BONAPARTE

French and Attorney-General's Assistant Hold 2-Hours Conference.

REPORT IS NEARLY READY

At a conference held in the Hotel Touraine to-day United States District Attorney Asa P. French outlined to Milton D. Purdy, assistant to Attorney-General Bonaparte, the scope of the investigation which he has been conducting regarding the alleged illegal purchase of the Boston & Maine by the New Haven railroad.

The alleged violations of law by New Haven officials in the purchasing of the Boston & Maine without the consent of the Massachusetts Legislature were first brought to the attention of Attorney French by Grenville S. McFarland, chairman of the executive committee of the State committee of the Independence League.

The Government prosecutor was able to report great progress to the representative of the Department of Justice, and stated that his report to President Roosevelt and Attorney-General Bonaparte is to be submitted in the near future.

The utmost secrecy was maintained at the conference, which lasted about two hours, the newspaper reporters getting but no information as to the discussion. Mr. French admitted that he was to meet Attorney Purdy, but would not say where. Mr. Purdy arrived in Boston early to-day, and went at once to the hotel, and at 10 o'clock Mr. French called.

The probe of the merger, begun by District Attorney French in Boston, has been approved by the President and Mr. Bonaparte, both of whom are giving the local prosecutor every assistance.

The conference of the two government officials comes on the day following the annual meeting of the Boston & Maine stockholders at Lawrence yesterday. By the terms of the act passed by the Legislature the New Haven corporation was restrained from voting the 100,000 shares of Boston & Maine which it holds and no directors could be selected because a majority of the stock was not represented.

GERMANY HARD UP; IS SEEKING BIG LOAN

BERLIN, Oct. 10.—The German government is pinched for funds, according to rumors in financial circles here, and is planning to float a new loan next April. In the meantime money is being raised for pressing needs by treasury bills. The various credits already authorized but not realized amount to $35,500,000.

ROBERTS TELLS OWN STORY AT TRIAL TODAY

MAINE GUIDE EXPLAINS HIS MOVEMENTS ON NIGHT EDGAR DICKINSON WAS SHOT.

HOULTON, Me., Oct. 10.—John Roberts to-day tells the jury that is trying him for the murder of Edgar Dickinson his own story of what he did on the night and the day before the shooting of the farmer at Smyrna Mills.

It will be the final effort to prevent the State of Maine from sending him to prison for life.

Like one entranced, Roberts listened to his attorney thunder at the jury an outline of the story as it is told by him to-day. His eyes staring straight at the characteristic features of the man who is defending him, his mouth open, his whole frame tense, he hardly moved during the whole hour that Mr. Shaw talked to the jury.

In the crowd back of him a densely packed crowd of women, among whom was Mrs. Annie Dickinson, widow of the murdered man, listened to every word.

One woman fainted in the crush and pitched headlong down the stairs. She was carried from the courthouse and the address went on without interruption. It was the most dramatic event of the trial.

One witness failed to answer to his name when he was called. Judge Emery immediately ordered a capias issued for the young man. William Joscelyn of Island Falls, a deputy sheriff was dispatched to that town and immediately placed Joscelyn under arrest. Judge Emery, after hearing his explanation that he could not come because of sickness in the family where he was living, fined him $5 for contempt of court.

Attorney Shaw has not yet revealed what line he will make of Mrs. Dickinson or whether he will call her at all. Her name was not announced when called as witnesses for the defence. All the time she sat in her corner of the gallery, screened from view as much as possible.

"I know nothing," she said to-day, "I am here. They told me to come and to occupy a room in this hotel which had been engaged for me. Mr. Shaw has not been to see me. None of the county officers have come to see me.

"I don't know what they want. All I know is that I was told to come and not to talk to people. I want to go back home, and I hope they will let me go soon."

Widow Prays for the End.

As the trial has gone along Edgar Dickinson's widow has grown nervous over the uncertainty of her position. She has no idea what is expected of her. Her story has never been told on the witness stand. Once she was a defendant on the same charge for which Roberts is now being tried. Since her secret arrival in town last Sunday night she has seen only two or three persons to talk to and those were relatives and a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter.

For the second time she has been compelled to listen to the stories of her near neighbors in which her name was coupled with that of Jack Roberts. Few women have ever been put so often on the rack as has Mrs. Dickinson.

Sometime I hope there may be an end to this, she said to me to-day. "I am sick and tired of these lying stories."

Surprise in Store for State.

Twenty witnesses have been summoned for the defence. There may be others called later. It has been learned from the office of counsel for the defence that they have a surprise for the State's argument. The names of the witnesses already called did not reveal that this surprise might be.

"Roberts did not have any motive to kill Ed Dickinson, did not make threats to take the life of the man who was his friend, he did not have the opportunity, and he never had anything to do with this crime charged against him," said Mr. Shaw in his opening to the jury.

"I claim also that it has not been shown that a crime was committed. The evidence of the State does not establish the possibility of Edgar Dickinson having been killed by any one. I claim that this evidence will satisfy you that a crime has been committed.

What Roberts Will Tell.

"Jack Roberts will tell you his own story. The State has claimed that he had a motive for killing Ed Dickinson. He will deny that he had a motive. He will deny that he had any improper relations with the wife of Ed Dickinson.

"He will tell you that to him she was simply the wife of one who had befriended him. He will spell the insinuations that he was trying to break up a home. He will deny the insinuations and the innuendos that have been made against him. He will tell his story and produce the evidence that will convince you he is telling the truth."

The State produced witness after witness to swear that they saw Roberts in or near Island Falls on Wednesday, the day before the killing of Dickinson. No stone was left unturned to prove this one point.

Battle on Two Dates.

Mr. Shaw said that he would produce witnesses to show that Roberts was in Island Falls on Monday, and not on Wednesday, that all the things that it was claimed he did on Wednesday he in reality did on the Monday.

On this point rests the great battle between the two forces, for it was admitted that if the State could prove that the defendant was there on the latter date a case had been made.

HUSBANDS-TO-BE MEET 5 ENGLISH GIRLS AT DOCKS

Five Marriages To-day After Governmental Red Tape Is Untangled.

BIG LIST ON THE IVERNIA

Five pretty English girls reached Boston to-day on the Cunard Line steamer Ivernia to wed the men of their choice who have been in America preparing homes for them. The grooms to be were on the dock awaiting their sweethearts but the immigration officials refused to allow them to land until all the Government red tape requirements had been complied with.

The girls have agreed to have the weddings performed by James A. Burns, the marrying justice of the peace of the Cunard Line, as soon as they are liberated by the immigration agents and the weddings take place on the steamer this afternoon.

The girls and the men they are to marry are Alice Turner, who is to wed Hampton Hall of Cornwall, N. Y.; Lillian Cranch, whose future husband is William Ibft of No. 770 Broad street, Valley Falls, R. I.; Alice Hayward, who is to become the wife of James Kersey of No. 128 Shawmut avenue, New Bedford; Minnie Rogers, who is to be Mrs. John Donaldson of No. 9 Oakdale square, Jamaica Plain, and Nellie S. Morton, whose husband will be Arthur Stratton of No. 7 Agawam street, Worcester.

The couples say that after the civil ceremonies on the steamer there will be five church weddings in the places in which they are going to make their homes.

One of the most prominent passengers on the Ivernia was the Hon. Henry Campbell, town clerk of Dublin, former private secretary to the late Charles Stewart Parnell, the famous Irish leader, and for several years a member of the English parliament from County Down. Mr. Campbell is accompanied by Isaacs Harris of Boston, who has been his guest at his Irish estate, at Shank Hill for six months.

"I do not intend to make any speeches or take part in any discussions of Irish affairs while I am in this country," Mr. Campbell told a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter to-day. "I am ill and have come here for a long holiday. Later on I am going to Washington to pay my respects to President Roosevelt, for whom I have great admiration. Throughout Ireland President Roosevelt is well known and well liked."

C. H. Paine, of Paine, Webber & Co., bankers and brokers, who returned in the first cabin of the Ivernia with his wife and four daughters, has been abroad for eighteen months.

"The copper situation does not look as discouraging to me as it apparently does to some people here," said Mr. Paine. "Copper Range and all the good copper stocks I am satisfied are going to rally."

4 DEAD, 3 DYING AS LAUNCH EXPLODES

ATTEMPT TO LIGHT CIGAR ON GASOLINE CRAFT LEADS TO TRADEDY.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Four young men were drowned and three others were so seriously burned in the explosion of a gasoline launch on Raritan Bay to-day that they may not recover.

For three hours after the explosion the three survivors clung to the rail of the launch and fought off the flaming gasoline which surrounded them in the water. The dead:

Harry P. Barter, No. 83 Market street, bookkeeper in the First National Bank of Perth Amboy.

Floyd Melrose, a draughtsman, No. 16 Kearney avenue, Perth Amboy.

Charles Wickberg, No. 78 Brighton avenue, and clerk in the Perth Amboy Terra-cotta Company.

The injured:

Joseph J. Hornsby, No. 87 State street, bookkeeper National Fireproofing Company, head and hands badly burned and suffering from exposure.

Nelson P. T. Macan, a draughtsman of three minutes.

No. 71 State street, Perth Amboy, similar injuries.

Richard Ruisedge, a draughtsman of Trotzville, similarly afflicted.

The seven young men started late at night from Perth Amboy in a large gasoline launch owned by Macan, for Keyport, intending to stop there for a few minutes and return to their homes. When two miles off Keyport one of them lighted a cigar to ignite a cigar. A spark flew into the drippings of gasoline in the bottom of the boat, and instantly communicated the flames to the fifty-gallon tank in the head of the boat.

ROOSEVELT'S OLD GUIDE GOES INSANE

OGDENSBURG, N. Y., Oct. 11.—"Mike" Cronin, one of the President's Adirondack guides, has been adjudged insane and brought to the State Hospital here. It was Cronin who drove with Vice-President Roosevelt sixteen miles through the North Woods to the nearest railroad station in 1901 when a courier brought him the news of McKinley's assassination. They made the sixteen miles in one hour and forty minutes.

GET ITALIAN ACCUSED OF SLAYING WIFE

Accused of the murder of his wife at Cannido, Italy, on June 26, Michael Maffe, forty-five years old, is now a prisoner at police headquarters. He was arrested at the request of the Italian Government in the North Station last night by Inspector Patterson of police headquarters.

He denies that he murdered his wife and insists that she died of blood poisoning, but cables from Italy say that he shot her to death. Maffe landed in Boston in September, with a passport from the Italian Government made out in the name of Arangino Carmino.

At that time the Boston police had elevators from Italy giving a description of him and his crime, but he escaped detection, although he has spent much of his time around the North End.

Inspector Patterson says that he recognized Maffe from the descriptions given of him in the circulars.

When Maffe was examined at headquarters the police became satisfied that he was the man they wanted despite his denials, as he has six toes on one foot. The circulars from Italy describe these toes minutely and tell of certain marks which appear on Maffe's foot.

The police were aided in finally getting Maffe to admit his identity by Francisco Giadino, a thirteen-year-old fruit peddler, who makes daily trips to police headquarters.

The Italian government was cabled today that Maffe had been arrested, and he will be sent to Italy to await word from the Italian authorities.

MRS. PASQUAN SAVED FROM STARVATION

Moved by Pathetic Fate of Diplomat's Wife, Scores Hasten to Send Her Relief.

BACK WITH DAUGHTER

Rejoicing because she is again with her baby daughter, Dolores, for whose sake she faced starvation for six terrible weeks and in desperation finally tried to sell her skin to Bellevue Hospital for grafting purposes, Mrs. Marguerita Pasquan, the handsome wife of an Italian diplomat, is back in Boston, befriended by a host of new-found friends ready to help her and full of hope for a brighter future.

From the proud position of the wife of the secretary of the Italian legation at Vienna, where she mingled with the nobles of Europe, to that of an unsuccessful supplicant for the most menial labor to earn bread is in brief the terrible story which this woman, who speaks six languages and sings like a prima donna, to-day tells to BOSTON AMERICAN readers.

American Brought Aid.

It was the publication of her pitiful story by the AMERICAN on Sunday which brought help to the mother in New York when she had not a penny. Led by the Rev. Herbert S. Jonnson of the Warren Avenue Baptist Church, Dorchester, and their congregations made up a purse for Mrs. Pasquan, and scores of letters poured into her, some of them enclosing money and many others offering employment.

Encouraged by these, the unfortunate woman returned to Boston, where she had vainly sought work during the Summer. She is now in receipt of the many letters received, and is considering different avenues of employment.

It is probable that she may take a position in some private family as governess and music teacher. She is a skilled pianiste and suitable for her powers as a singer.

While she sang for an AMERICAN reporter who called at the home of Mrs. A. E. La Mothe, No. 567 Massachusetts avenue, last night, she remarked sadly that her voice was not yet strong after her recent hardships.

Many Offers Bar Baby.

"All due to starvation," she said, with emotion. "It will take months for me to get over the awful experiences I had in that great, cruel city.

"I cannot warmly express my gratitude to the BOSTON AMERICAN for what it has done for me," she said. "It was the first session of the Superior Criminal Court before Judge Brown and jury since Tuesday, did not appear in court to-day and his bonds for $6,000 were declared defaulted.

The police are looking for the Chinaman.

His left the courtroom yesterday at 1 o'clock when all the evidence was in and the court adjourned the case until to-day. The last seen of Woon was at 1.50 o'clock when he was observed in front of the court house, talking with a interpreter.

When court reconvened to hear argument, the Chinaman was missing. Judge Brown directed the jury to enter the jury room to await the return or capture of the defendant and when he was still missing at 4 o'clock the jurors were excused until 9.30 to-day. It was believed by the police that they would have the Chinaman in custody by that time, but when the court opened to-day he was still missing. Then the default was entered.

ROGERS IS CALLED IN STANDARD OIL PROBE

MAGNATE RISKS HIS LIFE IN HURRIED TRIP TO NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—H. H. Rogers, vice-president of the Standard Oil Company, left suddenly for New York yesterday from his home at Fairhaven, Mass., where he has been confined by illness for some time. An imperative message from William Rockefeller caused Mr. Rogers's journey, which was made in his fast steam yacht Kanawha, with his physician, Dr. C. A. Pratt.

Coincident with the imperative summons of Mr. Rogers, inquiries looking toward that he would require Mr. Rockefeller's presence at the investigation hearing to-day to explain the disposition of a $32,000,000 loan appearing on the standard's books.

About 9 o'clock yesterday morning, according to dispatches from Fairhaven, a long distance telephone call to Mr. Rogers's house put him in connection with the Standard Oil offices and with William Rockefeller in person.

Roused from Sick Bed.

Two passengers were dispatched posthaste from the house. One got Dr. Pratt in a hurry; the other ordered the engineer of the Kanawha to get up steam at once and be ready to sail in an hour.

Soon after the yacht steamed out of the harbor with Mr. Rogers and Dr. Pratt aboard. Since Mr. Rogers has declared himself recently to be not in some New York to attend the investigation of Standard Oil it is believed some tremendously important development must be under way to induce him to come now.

The Kanawha had not reached this city early this morning.

A mysterious loan of $32,761,000, which appeared on the books of the Standard Oil Company during the year 1903, was the chief subject of investigation on the part of Inquisitor Kellogg in yesterday's hearing of the suit of the government to dissolve the Standard Oil Company.

The president of the Standard Oil Company of New York, Wesley H. Tilford, said that he knew nothing of the account, and in reply to the inquiry concerning the loan which appeared on the books as bills receivable, he replied:

"I do not know if it was a loan to other Standard Oil interests or not.

"But you were president of the company," persisted Mr. Kellogg, "and as such an official should know something of a matter of over $32,000,000. Would you not?"

"I really do not recall anything about it," the witness replied, but he said that he thought that the treasurer, Mr. Rockefeller, or Auditor Bedford, Mr. Howe, would know of the transaction.

"Does the Standard Oil Company loan money on call?" queried the government's attorney.

STILL HOLD PARK PIPE LINE.

"I think it does now and then, but it is only done on short terms.

Mr. Tilford also testified to the manner in which the liquidating trustees made a pretense of fulfilling their trust.

The question of the ownership of the pipe line under Central Park was also cleared up by Mr. Tilford. He said that the title still rested with the Standard Oil Company of New York, but that it did not appear on the books of that company after 1906.

It was purchased by the New York company, in 1899 from the National Transit Company. Mr. Tilford acted as if he was not now carried on the books he could not explain.

By a series of records Mr. Kellogg showed that the National Transit Company paid rentals to the Standard of New York of $754,454 for 1895, which gradually increased until they reached $1,138,142 in 1902, and then decreased until in 1905 the rental was only $238,197.

Mr. Fay, the assistant auditor of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, was previously testified that the Standard carried this pipe line on its books at a valuation of $84,853.

DONOVAN GETS NOMINATION FOR SHERIFF

Webster Chosen by Republicans to Fight for District Attorneyship.

James Donovan of Ward 9 for sheriff was the choice of the Suffolk County Democratic convention in Faneuil Hall last night, in a close contest with Sheriff Seavey. Arthur W. Dolan was chosen for register of probate.

Sheriff Seavey received 77 votes against 99 votes for Donovan. The bulk of Seavey's support came from Wards 8, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 25, and the cities of Chelsea and Revere.

Walter A. Webster, now Representative from Ward 22, captured the district attorneyship nomination at the convention of the Republican party early to-day. The convention which was held in Faneuil Hall, was hotly contested and prolonged, the decisive vote not being taken until after midnight. Every one of the 293 qualified delegates was present.

Edward H. Seavey was renominated for sheriff, and David T. Montague for register of probate, at the regular county convention, held previously in the same hall. Both these nominations were by acclamation.

No less than eight candidates fought for the district attorneyship before Mr. Webster, on the fourth ballot, got the requisite number of ballots.

The other candidates were John S. Richards, Jr., George A. Goodrich, Philip Doggett, John K. Berry, A. D. Hill, Guy A. Hunt and George H. Tinkham, all of whom received votes in some of the ballots.

RECOUNT BILL BATTLE BEFORE N. Y. TRIBUNAL

SHEARN'S MASTERLY PLEA

By Boston American Leased Wire.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 10.—The semifinal crisis in the two-year fight of William Randolph Hearst to oust from George B. McClellan the office of Mayor, which the latter holds through a disputed election, was reached to-day, when able counsel in the highest court in the State presented arguments regarding the constitutionality of the recount bill as passed by the last Legislature.

Arguments were heard on two appeals; one from the Appellate Division, first department, and one from the Appellate Division, second department. The appeals were in an alternative writ of prohibition proceeding.

Clarence J. Shearn represented the respondent, William R. Hearst, while Franklin K. Pendleton, counsel for Governor Hughes to the Legislature urging the enactment of the bill into law providing for the recount in counties where fraud.

"What is needed is a disposition of this matter in a manner which will end it and be decided. It would be most unfortunate that legislation to this end should fail."

Main Dissenting Opinion.

Taking up the main dissenting opinion that the main question to be determined is whether the act invests the court with judicial functions, Mr. Shearn declared:

"The act neither offends the constitution by imposing upon the judiciary functions which extensively belong in the executive or the executive branch of the government nor violates the section requiring that the boards for counting votes at elections.

"To support this contention Mr. Shearn quoted from various judicial decisions in the past, and asserted that the real question was as to the main or fundamental duty imposed upon the court.

Court's Duty in Case.

"This duty," he said, "consists in passing judgment on ballots, which, whatever the reason, have escaped judicial scrutiny, but as to whose validity sufficient doubt exists to create a dispute between counsel representing the respective parties.

"That is the essential and vital function that is conferred upon the court by this statute. If it is not judicial, why have the matter in any manner at all? Since 1894 this system has been in force?"

Mr. Pendleton asserted that the two appeals were from orders denying two motions for permanent writs of prohibition solely as a matter of law, and that the title to the office of Mayor of the city of Buffalo was not sent to Buffalo's Mayor for the appointment. This was sent to the acting "Mayor" of New York.

HASTINGS JURY FAIL TO REACH VERDICT

The Jury in the Hastings case, after being out eight hours, reported a disagreement and were discharged by Judge Dodge.

ESCAPES FROM POLICE.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 10.—A man believed to be a much-wanted crook was arrested here to-day and escaped. He said he was Charles S. McCormack, of Chicago, a son of the head of the International Harvester Company.

HISGEN FLAYS CHILD SLAVERY IN MILLS

Addresses Meeting at Worcester With Ringing Protest Against Cruel System.

"Monstrous Outrage," He Declares, Promising to Aid in Every Movement by Pastor.

Special to the Boston American.

WORCESTER, Oct. 10.—Great enthusiasm was caused at a meeting in this city last evening called to protest against the white slavery that is said to exist in the mills here by a ringing speech from Thomas L. Hisgen, candidate for Governor on the Independence League ticket.

The meeting was held in Washburn Hall and was attended by between 500 and 600 representative citizens of Worcester. Mr. Hisgen was here on business and went into the meeting upon the invitation of a friend. The fact that he was in the hall was probably not known to half a dozen until he was asked to take the platform. He received a warm greeting.

A more determined demonstration was never seen in this city. That children had literally been sold into bondage by their parents, under a custom known as the miner's release, and that many of such cases are to be found in the Steel and Wire Trust has been asserted over and over again.

Rich Minister Leads Fight.

The leaders in the fight against this form of slavery have been Anson A. Reed and the Rev. Lyon Phelps. Both have given the subject extended study and investigation. The clergyman has called on the ministry, preaching his last sermon next Sunday, in order to give his life to the betterment of the condition of wage workers.

Descended from the man who set the light on the north church tower that Paul Revere in his famous ride, married into a family with a million. Mr. White has forsaken his flock for a wider field of work. He declared last evening that he would never again wear a hat but go through the street in sunshine and rain bareheaded or with a small liberty cap, as a sign that he had devoted his life to the cause of working humanity.

The minister expects to be called a crank for this peculiar action, but he wants to know him are sure that he is none other than an honest, active and intelligent clergyman who proposes to do what he can to lift the burden that now bears heavily upon the shoulders of the working men and women of the country.

One of the most dramatic features of the remarkable meeting was the appearance on the stage of a one-armed man named Ingalls, who walked up to deny the sworn ing contents of the release paper that is signed by parents. He admitted that he had signed one of them himself and that his son worked in the Steel and Wire Trust factory in consequence.

Exhibits Shoe Contract.

The denial came from him when Mr. Reed had read the newspaper paragraph that purported to be a copy of the contract. No sooner had Ingalls made the denial than another man in the audience arose and produced one of the original contracts. It was identical with the production in the newspaper, and showed that Ingalls probably did know what he was signing when he attached his signature to the one presented by him.

Mr. Reed and the Rev. Mr. White had both presented the subject in an unusually effective way when the clergyman, who acted as moderator of the gathering, which was called as a town meeting, called for Mr. Hisgen. The Independence League standard bearer, speaking with unusual feeling, said:

It is an unexpected pleasure for me to be here this evening. I was in Worcester for a few hours' business and a friend told me about this meeting.

I had heard something of the outrageous conditions that are said to prevail here relative to the employment of minors. But I had no idea that such a monstrous thing was being perpetrated as the actual selling of boys into slavery until I heard a copy of the contract read to-night.

Gentlemen, it is outrageous, and I am glad of the opportunity to join my emphatic protest with yours against such barbarous action.

I am not here to ask for your votes at the polls but to assure you that I am with you heart and soul in the fight which you are starting against the powerful Wire and Steel Trust.

I know something about the heartlessness of the most gigantic trust in this country. I refer to the Standard Oil Trust, and it is the father of the remorseless corporations you have here in Worcester. I have grown gray fighting it. I am still fighting it and I expect to keep in the harness fighting it as long as I live.

Public is Aroused.

One of the speakers declared that we are to blame for the creation of the trust, because of the manner in which we have cast our ballots. He is right. But the people of the country are being aroused by this and other acts of brutality which the citizens of the land have been forced to suffer.

I believe the people in time will correct the great evils that confront us. We have had the example of one clergyman who refused a $100,000 missionary contribution because the money was tained with blood. That was a hopeful sign.

It was through our votes for men to represent us in our law-making bodies that these men are able to buy our boys into white slavery for $1 a head.

There is but one way to remedy the matters that is with the ballot. I would advise you to see every Senator and Representative and sound him as to how he stands on the slavery question in Massachusetts in 1907. Those who are not flatly against it should be beaten now and forever.

You all remember something about the fight that was waged against the over time bill. That bill aimed to take from great corporations the power of forcing women and children to work at night in order that they might earn decent pay. Although 85 per cent. favored the bill, and one Governor was defeated on account of it, it took thirteen years to accomplish its passage.

Predicts Hard Fight.

It will require just as hard and relentless a fight to win the battle for the wage slaves of this city and country.

Mr. Moderator, I want to assure you again that my heart and soul are with you. May God speed you in the noble work you have undertaken and at any time if I can be of the least service to you, you are free to call on me and I assure you I will respond.

If I am elected Governor of Massachusetts it will not be the result of assistance I get from any trust, but by the votes that cannot be bought—the votes of men who refuse to be slaves. I thank you for your courtesy in asking me to be present and say these few words.

In his very impressive adress Mr. Reed declared that the Steel and Wire Trust had sown the veritable seed of slavery in Worcester. He read the contract that parents sign, "waiving any and all rights" to their sons from the age of sixteen until they are twenty-one, and declared it one of the most inhuman acts in history for a parent to turn over his child to the tender mercies of men who have no interest.

Grind Boys Into Dividends.

"When these men are allowed to take our boys," said the speaker, "how long do you think it will be until they begin to take our men. And what do they do with the boys? They grind them into dividends for their stockholders. My God, has it come to this, that men will sell white children for $1? Negro boys were worth more than that in the slavery days."

The Rev. Mr. White gave the result of investigations that he had made. He tried to get both sides of the matter, he said, but had little success in reaching the steel and wire company's end of it. He read a telephone conversation he had with the head of the concern here, in which the Trust man denied that the minor's release was being used by them, and declared that "they were not concerning themselves what the public thought of them."

The clergyman then gave instances of boys whom he had interviewed who had had such papers in their possession. He told of men who work all day without dinner hour and are employed half the twenty-four hours during seven days of the week.

Many other citizens spoke in denunciation of the wonderful man and condition in Worcester. As Mr. Hisgen was leaving the hall many persons approached him and shook his hand.

"I'm going to support you," said one man, "and I have four sons who will do the same."

Hisgen Lashes Heartless Methods of Big Trusts

"I know something about the heartlessness of the most gigantic trust in this country. I refer to the Standard Oil Trust, and it is the father of the remorseless corporation you have here in Worcester. * * * I would advise you to see every Senator and Representative and sound him as to how he stands on the slavery question in Massachusetts in 1907. * * * If I am elected Governor of Massachusetts it will not be the result of assistance I get from any trust, but by the votes that cannot be bought."—From Candidate Hisgen's speech in Worcester.

'FACTORIES IS IRELAND'S NEED'

—REV J. F. FLOOD.

"Ireland's greatest drawback is lack of manufacturing industries," declared the Rev. James F. Flood, a Chicago priest, who reached Boston to-day on the Cunard liner Ivernia, after spending three months in Ireland.

"Her people make their great mistake by sticking to agriculture with a very small amount of land at their disposal. Ireland needs more manufacturing establishments, and when they are established she will take her proper place in the family of nations."

Charcoal Kills Bad Breath

Bad Odor of Indigestion, Smoking, Drinking or Eating Can Be Instantly Stopped.

Sample Package Mailed Free.

Other people notice your bad breath where you would not notice it at all. It is nauseating to other people to stand before them and while you are talking give them a whiff or two of your bad breath. It usually comes from food fermenting on your stomach. Sometimes you have it in the morning—that awful sour, bilious, bad breath. You can stop that at once by swallowing one or two Stuart Charcoal Lozenges, the most powerful gas and odor absorbers ever prepared.

Sometimes your meals will reveal themselves in your breath to those who talk with you. "You've had onions," or "You've been eating cabbage," and all of a sudden you become in the face of your friend. Charcoal is a wonderful absorber of odors, as every one knows. That is why Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges are so quick to stop all gases and odors of odorous foods or gas from indigestion.

Don't use breath perfumes. They never conceal the odor, and never absorb the gas that causes the odor. Besides, the very fact of using them reveals the reason for their use. Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges in the first place stop for good all sour brash and belching of gas, and make your breath fresh and sweet, just after you've eaten. Then no one will turn his face away from you when you breathe or talk; your breath will be pure and fresh, and besides your food will taste so much better to you at your next meal. Just try it.

Charcoal does other wonderful things, too. It carries away from your stomach and intestines all the impurities there massed together and which causes the bad breath. Charcoal is a purifier as well as an absorber.

Charcoal is now by far the best, most easy and mild laxative known. A whole boxful will do no harm; in fact, the more you take the better. Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges are made of pure willow charcoal and mixed with just a faint flavor of honey to make them palatable for you, but not too sweet. You just chew them like candy. They are absolutely harmless. Get a new, pure, sweet breath, freshen your stomach for your next meal, and keep the intestines in good working order. These two things are the secret of good health and long life. You can get all the charcoal necessary to do these wonderful but simple things by getting Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges. We want you to test these little wonder workers yourself before you buy them. So send us your full name and address for a free sample of Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges. Then after you have tried the sample, and been convinced, go to your druggist and get a 25c. box of them. You'll feel better all over, more comfortable, and "cleaner" inside.

Send us your name and address today and we will at once send you by mail a sample package, free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 209 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

LABOR MEN TO SUPPORT CANDIDATE OF LEAGUE

Charles E. Kidder of Taunton Unanimous Choice in Second Council District.

Charles G. Kidder of Taunton, the most prominent advocate of the cause of organized labor in Bristol County, was the unanimous choice for Councillor in the Second District at a large and enthusiastic convention in Temperance Hall, Washington street, Norwood. He was placed in nomination by John M. Pease of Boston. There were fifty-three delegates present.

The convention was called to order by Charles O. Power, representing the State Committee of the Independence League, who read the call for the convention. He announced that the delegates were assembled for the purpose of nominating a candidate for the Independence League party for the office of Councillor in the Second District.

Robert T. Allen was chosen chairman of the convention and Robert J. Mahady, secretary. Chairman Allen, upon motion, appointed a committee of three on credentials. The committee, attending to its work, announced that there were fifty-three delegates present.

CHARLES E. KIDDER.

Opposed to Corporations.

At this juncture John M. Pease of Boston, in an impassioned address, placed in nomination as the candidate for Councillor Charles G. Kidder of Taunton. Mr. Pease referred to him as a man well equipped to oppose the corporation candidate of the Republican party, stating that the Democrats had not named a candidate against the nominee of the Republican party. Great applause and enthusiasm greeted the name of Mr. Kidder.

After a ballot had been taken it was shown that the total number of delegates present, fifty-three, had all voted for Mr. Kidder, showing him to be the unanimous choice of the convention.

Endorses Independence League.

The following Councillor committee was chosen: James E. Murphy, Norwood, chairman; Robert E. Cherrington, Hyde Park; Thomas H. Bates, Boston; William A. Hackett, North Attleboro; Albert E. George, Walpole; John M. Pease, Boston; John Murphy, Dedham.

The convention went on record as endorsing the State ticket of the Independence League party. Resolutions were passed commendatory of the principles of the League. Action was taken relative to the strike of the Book Binders of Norwood.

The convention endorsed them in their fight for an eight-hour day for which they are contending and expressed the hope that success would ultimately crown their efforts.

Following the convention a vote was passed to throw open the convention hall to the public. This was a sooner done than every seat was quickly filled with sympathizers of the Book Binders Union who had been waiting patiently on the outside for an opportunity to hear about the Independence League from the lips of those eminently qualified to enunciate its doctrine.

Hisgen, Labor Man's Friend.

The first speaker was the Hon. Thomas H. Bates, candidate for the office of Senator in the Eighth District, comprising Wards 20 and 21, Boston. He said in part:

"This opportunity that has been presented to you this evening to enlist your support in behalf of a candidate who is a true friend of labor, Thomas L. Hisgen, the Independence League candidate on the State ticket, who has successfully fought the Standard Oil octopus in his home district in Springfield, is one for which you should be thankful.

"I understand that many of you who are present here this evening are members of the Book Binders' Union and are on strike for an eight-hour day. If Thomas L. Hisgen was the Governor of this grand old Commonwealth he would, as a friend to all classes of labor, use his executive position to secure an honorable adjustment of your difficulties.

Thomas F. Phelan of Roxbury, Robert E. Carrington of Hyde Park, Edward F. Brennan of Hyde Park, James E. Murphy of Norwood and Charles O. Power of Boston also addressed the convention.

ADVANCE COST OF BOARD TO PRISONERS

AUBURN, Me., Oct. 10.—Because of the high cost of provisions of all kinds the Androscoggin County Commissioners have raised the price of the prisoners' board in the county jail. When the accounts were balanced at the last meeting it was found that the county has been losing money on every prisoner. The price of board was immediately advanced and the commissioners of other counties who have prisoners in Auburn jail were notified of the new rates.

40 CRUSHED IN AUSTRIA WRECK

VIENNA, Oct. 10.—An express train from Semlin collided with a freight near Budapest to-day. Ten persons are reported killed and thirty hurt, many of them crushed and maimed in the debris.

Fire broke out in the passenger coaches and this was responsible for several of the deaths. Pinned down by wreckage the victims were roasted to death.

VANDERBILT WEDDING IS POSTPONED

Hungarian Government Must First Investigate Bride's Pedigree.

Special to the Boston American.

NEWPORT, R. I., Oct. 10.—Court etiquette is putting hurdles in the course of true love which Miss Gladys Vanderbilt seeks to follow, and her marriage to Count Szechenyi, a Hungarian nobleman, must be delayed until the government of his land is satisfied with the antecedents of his bride-elect.

It had been planned to have the wedding at "The Breakers," the beautiful Newport home of Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, but owing to the complications which have arisen because Miss Vanderbilt is a foreigner, the ceremony will have to be delayed, it is expected, until December, and then will take place in the town house in New York of her mother.

Examine Pedigree.

All this disarrangement of carefully laid plans is due to the extraordinary interest which Hungary takes in keeping its aristocracy up to the old-time mark. Count Szechenyi, as a scion of that aristocracy, is held by his Government in a most paternal grip, and it is written that before he takes his bride everything about her must be proved to be all right.

Mrs. Vanderbilt has therefore confided her alternative to a few friends, with the added announcement that there will be both a civil law and a religious service in order to conform to the divergent religious beliefs of bridegroom and bride.

But a matter of even more vital gossip came forth to-day in the failure of both the bride's brother and her brother-in-law to join the general rejoicing over her approaching nuptials.

Brothers Oppose Count.

Mrs. Alfred Vanderbilt and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Reginald, laid their scruples aside quite jointly last Saturday when they attended the congratulatory banquet given by Miss Gladys's mother. But it became obvious to-day that Alfred and Reginald and Harry Payne Whitney have not yet forgotten the anti-foreign vow which the bride-to-be made her father before his death. Though all three have been within easy reach of "The Breakers," they have not yet congratulated Miss Gladys nor entered any of the genuinely complex whirls Mrs. Vanderbilt, her daughter, the Count and Mrs. Alfred hold daily in preparation for the big event.

Another effort to reconcile them to the match will be made next Saturday, when the mother will give a final dinner of reconciliation. The presence of the long estranged trait relatives is awaited with well nigh abated breath by the entire Newport set.

PANIC ON SHIP IN BATTLE WITH FIRE AND STORM

Shrieks of Women and Children Rise Above Gale in Perilous Run.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Their ship on fire in mid-ocean, the shrieks of frightened women and children rising and falling above a gale that at times seemed about to send the frail craft to the bottom, the passengers and crew of the Austrian steamer Gluck, Light Blue, Pink arrived here Thursday. For eleven hours the vessel was in the gravest danger, and it was only by the most superhuman effort that the blaze was extinguished.

The Gluck left Trieste September 14, with twenty-seven cabin passengers and 736 steerage. Before daylight Thursday the fire was discovered. At the time the steamer was being tossed and tumbled by mountainous waves driven by a forty-knot wind, which raked the vessel fore and aft.

Women and children moved about hysterically, all efforts to soothe them being futile.

The fire-fighting force rigged up a derrick and threw the blazing cargo overboard. Lines of hose were attached and the hold flooded. As soon as the flames were gotten to a trifle under control hatchets were battered in and live steam from the boilers turned in. By this means the fire was finally extinguished.

MISSING HEIRESS IS NOT ON MAJESTIC

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—The mystery surrounding the disappearance of Miss Helen Maloney, who is said to be one of the richest unmarried heiresses in the world, is increased by the news from London indicating that she is not on board the Majestic.

BITTER FIGHTS NOW SPLIT R.I. REPUBLICANS

State Convention To-day May Be Stormiest in Years. May Smash Brayton Machine.

BOSSISM IS CHIEF ISSUE

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 10.—With dissensions and factional quarrels threatening the annihilation of the remnant of the Brayton machine, the Republicans are pouring into the city from all quarters of the State to-day, expecting to participate in one of the stormiest State conventions that the party has known in Rhode Island for years.

Driven to bay by the clear connection of the policy on which the Higgins Democrats and Goddard Independents are to make the fight as expounded from the Democratic convention last Tuesday, and still further restricted by the flat refusal of their candidate for Governor to stand upon any other than an anti-Brayton platform, the Republican leaders find themselves compelled to voice some of the very declarations with which their opponents have opened the fight against them.

The Republican gathering of to-day has been preceded with many factional caucus fights.

Central Falls Fight on.

This morning the two contesting delegations from Central Falls, elected after an all night attempt to hold a convention, are airing their differences before the State Committee, which met at 9 o'clock to hear the claims of the relative factions to recognition, and similar squabbles echo and re-echo in the ears of the delegates from all over the State. Some of the trouble to-day is expected to break when the attempt is made to rush through a resolution endorsing George Peabody Wetmore for the United States Senate. Whether the delegates will show their animosity for Mr. Wetmore and his Republican League at the convention to-day or whether they will bide their time and spend either independent Democrats or Republicans to the General Assembly with instructions to vote for the defeat of Senator Wetmore, remains to be seen.

Mr. Wetmore himself is expected to attend the convention, and if so he will be invited to make a speech. There is much curiosity among politicians to see whether he will attempt to answer the platform of the Democratic convention on Tuesday which declared him to have purchased "Boss" Brayton's support for the senatorship, and to have supplied the funds which have for years enabled Brayton to retain his power, and the use of which has corrupted the electorate of Rhode Island.

The Republican leaders are awaiting the result of the nomination of Frederick H. Jackson for Governor. Knowing the terms upon which they have been forced to accept his nomination, the opposition of the boss and the enactment of anti-lobby-ing legislation at the next session, they fear the result of the report of the platform committee, of which ex-Governor Utter, who last year repudiated "Boss" Brayton in his fight against Governor Higgins, is announced as the chairman.

If the platform does not survive the storm which it will meet at the hands of Brayton's friends in the convention, the leaders are well aware that Mr. Jackson will not accept the nomination. If the platform finally evades all prejudice, and the candidate for Governor takes the platform to deliver his address of acceptance, they fear almost as much the effect of the arraignment of the boss system, which they are certain he will administer.

Jackson May Not Run.

For a week the machine leaders have been working on a preliminary draft for a platform. They have endeavored to disguise the lesns of bossism under different titles, but it is understood that they have been forced to call a spade a spade and trust to luck for the consequences. It is said that the leaders have come to the inevitable conclusion that the stand the party has taken against needed reforms is no longer tenable, and that the convention will be asked to declare for a veto power for the Governor, for a bank examiner, and against dictation or domination of the General Assembly by any individual.

Ex-Governor Utter is himself to nominate Mr. Jackson for the governorship, and his nominating speech is expected to be of a nature that will leave no doubt as to his stand on the issue of the Brayton machine.

HORSE BITES NOSE AND CHEEK OF GIRL

LIVERMORE FALLS, Me., Oct. 10.—Her nose and a part of one cheek bitten from her face by an ugly horse, Lucille, the four-year-old daughter of Mrs. Gladys Alley of this place, is in a critical condition. The horse, with head unchecked, was standing harnessed in the yard when the little girl jumped forward and fairly chased the little girl several yards. The little girl remains in a semi-dazed condition and it is feared that the injuries will prove fatal.

Go Back To Nature

ow Tried Today Throughout the Medical World.

Prominent Part in Sane Practice Taken by Boston Physician.

On every hand today the cry is, go back to nature and give nature a chance! For many years the health and happiness of human beings have been endangered, if not actually lost, by the administration of drugs and chemicals. Less medicine is being taken every day, and the thinking men in the world are beginning to recognize the words of St. John in Rev. 12, 2 "The leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nation." No one will deny that the vegetable and botanic kingdoms are the true sources from which medicine should be derived.

Dr. J. H. Liverpool, the subject of this article, was born of a Chinese mother and a Spanish father. His father was chief medicine man of the Santa Fe for over fifty years; his mother was educated by the missionaries. After learning all that he could from his father and the various tribes of Indians, he came to Boston and studied medicine as practiced by the white races.

For thirty years he has dispensed the healing balm contained in herbs, roots and barks. He is permanently located at 589 Tremont street, Boston, and can be consulted there Free by all any day, except Wednesday and Thursday, and on those days he can be found at 239 Essex street, Salem, Mass., Tel. Boston office, 1725-1 Tremont. He does not claim to do the impossible, but will give you an honest opinion of your case and describe minutely to you every ache and pain without any previous information from you.

150 GIRLS IN CANDY FACTORY OUT ON STRIKE

Chocolate Dippers in Union St. Concern Walk Out When Demands Are Refused.

ASK FOR INCREASED PAY

One hundred and fifty young women employed as chocolate dippers and packers struck immediately after reporting for work today at the candy factory of P. H. Orr & Company, at No. 87 Union street.

The strikers demand eight days' pay for fifty-eight hours' work, for which they have received but seven days' pay. During the last four months of the year the girls are given ten per cent. bonus at Christmas, for every week in which they have lost no time. They ask that they receive this bonus as before.

All the girls reported for work at 7:30 a. m. today, and a committee of five was chosen to present their demands to Manager Howard Low, who refused to grant the increase. The committee consisted of the Misses Adeline Brown, Sadie Doherty, Alice Dwyer, Blanche Paddock and Mary Miller. After the unsatisfactory conference at the office Miss Brown, chairman of the committee, declared to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter that they would accept no compromise, and that if their demands were not granted by noon all would seek places in other plants. She said:

Want Same Pay as Others Get.

"We will not go back to work there, anyway. We only want what all the other candy factories are paying for the same work as we are doing. In those they get eight days' pay for 58 hours' work, and we want the same.

"We went to Mr. Low to-day and told him that we wanted this increase, and that we would strike unless we got it. He informed us that he could not pay it, and to go ahead and strike; so we all walked out.

"We have no organization or headquarters, but the girls have agreed to stick together. We left only four or five girls in the factory when we quit. There is none in the fancy packing room, only two in the five-pound rooms and only two or three dippers in the whole place.

"I don't care if Mr. Low does say that he has one floor in operation—I don't believe it. I took particular notice when I came out, and saw only four or five girls in the factory, including the foreman.

Calls Demands Reasonable.

"We are not so awfully unreasonable in our demands. Some of the men struck with us. We are coming back here at noon. If they won't do anything for us then, we shall look around for other places.

"They won't be so very hard to get, either. Why, in the papers this morning one company advertises for 100 girls for dippers. In the other concerns they pay eight days' wages for fifty-eight hours' work, and I guess we can get jobs there."

JAIL "NON-SUPPORTER."

Charles O. Folsom was to-day fined $10 in the Dedham Court for neglect to support his wife. In default of payment he was sent to jail.

The opening game in the Boston High School Football League was played at the Locust Street Grounds, South Boston, yesterday afternoon, between English High and Roxbury High, the former winning, 11 to 6.

NEWS OF THE THEATRES

"Tom, Dick and Harry," a novelty in burlesques, seems to please Bostonians far more than anything else seen at the Columbia this season. Libby Blondell is high card. To-morrow night the amateurs spring some surprises.

Three distinctly different roles every day is the record of Blanche Bates at the Majestic this week. Nothing more artistically beautiful than "Madam Butterfly" has ever been seen here. At matinees, except Saturday, Miss Bates plays this Belasco Long picture and a farce comedy, and at night she continues "The Girl of the Golden West."

"The Girl with the Red Mask," and her six "English Cocktails" have created something of a sensation at the Palace this week, with the Bon Ton Burlesquers.

Joe Welch, W. C. Fields, Barnold's dogs, Hyams and McIntyre, Three Keatons, and Cohan's "The Governor's Son," are top part of the bill at the Tremont this week.

With "The Girl with the Green Eyes," which he is producing this week, to be followed next week by "Sky Farm," Manager Morrison of the Boston Theatre is establishing a record for stock productions that is of interest to the country 'round.

Next week at the Bowdoin Square Charlotte Hunt appears in the famous melodrama, "When the World Sleeps."

Pat White and his Gaiety Girls are providing part of the bill at the Howard this week, the Howard's own bill of progressive vaudeville making the fun continuous almost from noon to midnight.

Samuel Tornberg furnishes some excellent pictures of East Side life in his new play, "The Money Leader," at the Globe. Next week Fiske O'Hara comes in his new romantic Irish play, "Dion O'Dare."

The entrance of a star upon the stage is always carefully planned, but none has ever been more artistically done than that of Marie Dora in "The Mosaics of Marcus" at the Park this week. She achieves a very great personal triumph.

In addition to the unusually interesting list of features in the photo-play bill at Austin & Stone's, there is a remarkably capable trio of actors included in the theatre program. They are Tom Meadows, Vera Belasco and Tom Bateman, who put on comedies that would do credit to a $2 house.

In only one theatre in the country do a score of beautiful girls in all the panoply of stagedom go through the orchestra and stand where all can see them, at close range. In "The Follies of 1907" this is done, and the Colonial is crowded from pit to dome nightly.

Charles F. Semon (the narrow feller) is one of the headliners at Keith's this week. He is a Boston boy and very popular here. Pete Dailey, Stella Mayhew, Lew Hoade, Salerno, Anderson and Goines—and a lot more are there also for this week only.

The Red Haired Girl from Houghton & Dutton's is a welcome addition to vaudeville at the Orpheum this week, in illustrated songs. Frick and Cairo, the most versatile pair of jibs in the world, are also there, with Grace and Hoag, Gracie Emmett, Carroll Johnson, Zeno, Jordan and Zeno and the Murray sisters.

"The Beggar Student" is the operatic bill at the Castle Square this week, to be followed on Monday next by "La Sonnambula," one of the greatest of the Italian operas.

Many temptations beset chorus girls off the stage, and some of these are vividly depicted in "A Chorus Girl's Luck in New York," which is now running at the Grand Opera House.

Glimpses of life on the East Side, liberally sprinkled with burlesque, can be had at the Lyceum this week, where the Bowery Burlesquers hold forth. The olio is particularly strong.

There are a number of new productions promised for Boston next week. Eleanor Robson in "Salomy Jane" comes to the Hollis; Lawrence D'Orsay and Cecelia Loftus in "The Lancers" to the Majestic, Miss Reid in "A Parisian Romance" to the Colonial, Fiske O'Hara in "Dion O'Dare" to the Globe and "The Gambler of the West" to the Grand Opera House.

Grace George is nearing the close of her stay here. For a long series of good, hearty laughs, the satisfaction of witnessing a delightful comedy artistically produced, the Hollis is the place to go this week, for Miss George and Frank Worthing are there producing "Divorcons."

BEARS ARE SHY OF ROOSEVELT

STAMBOUL, La., Oct. 10.—President Roosevelt has had another fruitless hunt for bear. He started out for swamp early yesterday, and a courier who came into Stamboul late last night reported that up to the time he left no game had been brought in. The conditions for the sport, however, were ideal and the dogs had not been out long before they struck a trail. The hunters failed to get close enough to use their guns and Mr. Bear escaped, for the time being at least.

Although attended by ill luck thus far, the President is still determined and plans to resume the hunt again to-day.

Dr. Mills of Mississippi has arranged to bring over a pack of eighteen cat dogs, wild cats being plentiful in the woods where the President is hunting.

JANITOR NEAR DEATH BY FIRE

Seriously burned by flames which were blown from the furnace of the Brighton High School on Washington street, near Chestnut Hill avenue, at 7:30 o'clock today, John P. Jones, fireman at the school, is at the Massachusetts General Hospital. The right side of his body, his face and his arms are terribly scorched and doctors at the hospital fear that he will not recover. Jones was putting coal in the furnace when the accident happened.

HATTIE BELLE LADD HAS TESTIMONIAL

At last evening's performance of "The Beggar Student" at the Castle Square Theatre, Hattie Belle Ladd was given a testimonial. Souvenir photographs, with a half-tinted biography of the artist, were distributed and she received a great ovation from the audience.

Girls, Don't Make It Too Easy for the Man Who Woos You

By Beatrice Fairfax

"But the fruit that can fall without shaking,
Indeed is too mellow for me."

DON'T make it too easy for the man who comes a-wooing you, and yet avoid the equally dangerous pitfall of making it too hard.

There's a happy medium, and the girl who understands men knows just where to strike it.

To fall, like over-ripe fruit, at the feet of a man the moment he beckons to you is to lessen your value in his eyes.

He must feel the keenness of the chase in order to appreciate your love after he has won it.

Keep Him in Doubt

IT is best for your dignity, and for his conceit, that he should have many moments of doubt as to the success of his wooing.

That which is too easily won is soon tired of.

Sometimes a letter from a girl or man will say "we fell in love at first sight."

Perhaps they did, but if the girl was wise she hid the fact carefully from the man until he had earned the right to the knowledge.

There is no harm in letting a man know that you like him and enjoy being with him, but for goodness' sake you don't let him suppose that you are more than ready with an acceptance any time he should propose.

I have seen a man very much attracted by a girl and pay her devoted attention for a short while, suddenly his interest lessened. As a rule, in a case of this kind, the girl has been too eager. She has gone more than half way in her anxiety.

Never ask a man when he will call again unless you know him very well indeed, and are on very friendly terms.

If you give him one cordial invitation, telling him that he is always welcome, do not fear that he will not find his way to your house often.

Make Him Welcome

SOME men are bashful, but not many, and when a man is anxious to see a girl he usually finds a way. When he does call, treat him so nicely that he will be glad to come again.

Don't play the "indifferent" game too far, for men tire of continual coldness.

Sometimes when a girl imagines that she will stimulate a man's interest by showing indifference toward him she merely succeeds in being rude.

You must make a man appreciate your friendship when he wins it, but don't think that you will win his heart by hurting his pride.

Let him understand that if you are worth winning you are certainly worth wooing and that if he wants your regard he must show it.

He will think all the more of you if he suffers an occasional fear of losing you.

Newport Is a Proof That Money Is Not Key to Happiness

By Mrs. John A. Logan

A MAJORITY of the people in the world are engaged in some effort to accumulate wealth. Days, weeks, months and years are spent in unremitting struggles for riches, and yet when success crowns their endeavors, what peace do they bring?

The richest community in any country has the fewest number of happy persons living there. The cares, vexations and sorrow stalin calamitous visitations that come upon the very rich often bring to the possessors of much gold unutterable woe. More shadows than sunshine often hangs over palaces and stately homes.

One who has visited Newport can testify to the gruesome atmosphere that surrounds very many of the deserted palaces that line the ocean shore and avenues of this city of the Croesuses of America.

There are any number of these magnificent establishments that cost millions. They are set in spacious lawns, surrounded by superb trees and beautiful gardens upon which millions more have been expended.

A Closed House

For a season or two perhaps it is filled with gay, pleasure-seeking people; then some tragedy causes the owners to depart, the blinds are closed and perpetual darkness pervades the whole establishment.

Its gorgeous appointments are left to moth and rust, and the gates are locked.

Whilom fancies, that cost thousands of dollars, are abandoned with the ease with which a child throws away a toy of which he has grown tired.

The owner seeks new diversions and excitement, hoping to quiet the longing of his heart for happiness. He seldom finds it through the glare of worldly pleasures, for

"Pleasures are like poppies spread,
You seize the flower, its bloom is shed;
Or like the snowfall in the river,
A moment white—then lost forever."

Sometimes "new people," as they are called, hire at fabulous prices for the season some of the closed palaces.

They find, to keep such establishments, they must not only pay enormous sums as rentals, but they must keep up an establishment that costs thousands and thousands of dollars.

Hopes Blighted

Quite often they find it a heavy burden to hold out for one brief season. They are amazed at the pace of the ultra-fashionable and realize they cannot keep up with them.

All their efforts to enter the charmed circle they have envied are unavailing. They retire their erstwhile grand abodes and return to homes which they are more fitted to adorn.

Again the palaces are left in the hands of the uncertain caretakers, and so every year visitors to Newport find these Aladdin's palaces unoccupied and "as like as a pin" to the many rich offers bring to the possessors of much gold unutterable woe. More shadows than sunshine often hangs over palaces and stately homes.

Often Ill at Ease

But when they discover it costs a king's ransom to sustain such establishments and that they are ill at ease and unhappy, they long to return to the comfortable homes and simple, natural lives to which they have been accustomed.

There they had peace and comfort, undisturbed by an army of attendants and servants upon whom they cannot depend no matter what wages they may pay.

They are impatient to get away from many of them from "social discomfort misery" and to return to the more agreeable companionship of an unpretentious home which offers happiness and permanency.

The doors and windows are boarded up, and people under the owners' control their palatial domiciles in pursuit of pleasures they could not find in abodes that are fit for rulers of empires.

The seller proper has nothing to do with the happiness of the dwellers, though naturally every one wishes to have a comfortable house in which to live.

The lodge is often a more blissful abode than the great mansion, the entrance to which it guards.

The simpler folk are often the envy of the dwellers in pretentious houses, because contentment all most frequently found in the hearts of dwellers in modest habitations.

It is not what we have in this world, but the way we use our blessings that insures the peaceful lives that bring the peace of mind that passeth all understanding.

Woman Speaks Good Word for the Corset

BY FLORENCE STACPOOLE

HERE'S a noted Englishwoman who has a good word to say for the corset. Her remarks are called forth by the present tight-lacing agitation which is being thrashed out in London. She says:

THE chief use of the corset, from a health point of view, is in the protection it affords from chills to the abdominal region (which includes stomach, liver, kidneys, etc.) This is a fact that is often quite forgotten by those who never speak of this article of feminine attire but in language of stern reprobation.

It is a very important fact, however, that Dr. James Cantlie has pointed out the value of the corset to women residing in India and other Eastern countries. He says that it is a well-known fact that women do not suffer from abdominal troubles in the tropics so much as men do, and he attributes their greater immunity from such troubles to the fact that they are protected from sudden chills in the abdominal region by their corsets, whereas men have not this kind of protection.

If this holds good in the tropics it should do so also in our own climate, with its rapid and disconcerting changes of temperature.

Another undoubtedly beneficial action of the corset is that it gives support to the abdominal walls and prevents the skirt from dragging downward from the hips, which is always a disfigurement and uncomfortable thing for a skirt to do.

Of course, you may say that skirts can be worn with suspenders over the shoulders, which will take the weight off the hips.

As a matter of fact, however, this kind of thing often continues to another evil—i. e., the drawing forward of the shoulders, with a consequent contraction of the chest, than which few things may more prove damaging to the health.

Proper-made corsets also undoubtedly assist in the prevention of "stooping," which is not to be deprecated merely on account of its ungainliness, but also very much on account of its unhygienicness.

A stooping figure cannot have properly oxygenated blood, and if the blood does not receive a sufficient supply of oxygen, anemia is very likely to follow.

Phthisis is also a follower of blood low, and in its disease-producing quality by lack of oxygen. "Stooping" is undoubtedly favorable to the development of tubercle.

Hygienists would therefore do well to abate their rabid zeal in disfavor of the corset. It is a useful garment. When it is an injurious one is when it is wrongly applied by being laced so as to compress the lower ribs and prevent the lungs being filled to their fullest capacity. But—

Corsets used in this way are undoubtedly engines for evil. Tight lacing tends toward the production of phthisis just as slouching may do, by interfering with the lung-containing capacity of the lungs.

There is no good thing that may not become an evil thing if wrongly used. The corset is a case very much in point.

HOUSEWORK WALKING

HERE'S a woman who carried a pedometer while she was doing housework. She discovered that under the most favorable conditions she traveled 7.33 miles daily in her household tasks.

What the Hostess Should Never Do

SOCIAL custom demands much from the hostess; indeed, it is to her, taken individually, that society owes its best and most elaborate bow.

She opens her house to her friends on special occasions, as well as to delightful informal dinners; or else she goes to the trouble and expense of entertaining all those she considers entertains. As spring no pains to give them pleasure.

Just a few "don'ts" should be borne in mind by the hostess contemplating, or she will find them of the greatest help in the way of pleasing.

DON'T discuss politics or religious matters unless you know your guests well, and that they are in sympathy with you.

DON'T appear in a fine dinished calling until all your guests do so.

DON'T notice servants' mistakes, and above all never reprove them; any small contretemps will not be noticed by guests unless you call attention to it.

DON'T notice when a guest declines wine; perhaps they are teetotalers, but at all events they know what they like, and should be considered at liberty to have it without comment.

DON'T forget that it is bad form to have guests to take more; they know they may have all they wish and will take it without being urged to do so.

IF walking dresses are to be four inches from the ground, as the men fallors insist that they must be, ladies should really see them for walking dresses should see nicely to service should not be made to do duty for the street also, but should inspire the wearer to long jaunts in the country roads or through length of quiet streets, at any rate.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

NOT A SERIOUS OBJECTION

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young girl, very much in love with a very good looking young man. He is four years my senior. My parents object to him because he is of a different nationality than I. They have no other objections, as he is a very nice fellow. Do you think I should give him up?

IF his nationality is their only objection it seems to me a slight one. If he is an honorable man and I am sure that in time he will win their regard.

JEALOUS, PERHAPS

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am about to be married to a young man who is twenty-one years old. He has a very jealous disposition and while he is very affectionate, and it hurts him very much to be treated this way, when I object to him marrying me, on the grounds that he is too young. My mother, seeing I am determined to marry him, begs me along the last so she can, and his mother, upon hearing this, says she is only trying to get rid of me. Now, my mother loves me very much, for more than his mother does he loves him, for she shows it more; but I am very affectionate. But if she knew that his mother said that she would be very implored, and perhaps trouble, because she is very proud.

My friend and I have done all we could. I myself have done everything to try and make her love me, now I intend to let matters go along just as if he had no mother and let her come to me. Don't you think I am right? I am her son's equal socially and financially; in fact, in every way.

Now, dear Miss Fairfax, what would you do in this case, for we love each other dearly.

AN UNHAPPY BRIDE-TO-BE.

PERHAPS she is a little bit jealous. Many mothers are when their sons marry. They feel that they are going away from them. Be just as nice to her as you can, and do not repeat any remarks that you may hear that are said about your mother and her. She probably loves her son dearly, and in time will come to love you as well, and there will be trouble between her and her son, but do your best to bring them together.

NAMES BEGIN WITH "S."

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Will you please give me some pretty odd name, beginning with S. What kind of a name is Selma?

VIOLET.

SELMA is a pretty name, and rather uncommon. Selma is pretty, and so is Serena. Personally, I think Susan a lovely name, also Suzanne or Susette.

"THE TURN OF THE BALANCE"

By Brand Whitlock

CHAPTER IV.—Continued.

Copyright, 1907, by American Press Association

MARION had not answered the letter, and only the day before Dillon had appeared, bringing with him a youth called Squeak. And now this night, as Mason sat there, he did not like to think of Dillon.

Dillon had travelled hundreds of miles by freight trains to be with Mason, to give him part in his enterprise, and had been to the little town and examined the bank; he had even entered it by night alone. He had laid his plans, and, with his kind, could not conceive of their miscarrying.

He had estimated the amount they would secure; he considered fifty thousand dollars a conservative estimate.

It was the logic of which they were always dreaming as a means of reformation.

But Mason had refused. Then Dillon had cursed, and Curly had refused. Mason Dillon no reason for his refusal, but contended that Nothing was the matter with such a big job; the nights were short and people slept lightly, with windows, even if the old school pattern not with.

Dillon had taunted him and hinted contemptuously at a brood. They had almost come to blows. Finally Dillon had left, talking with him Mandell and Squeak and Arabian-Knight to go.

Mason sat there and thought of Dillon and his companions. He could imagine them on the Joe Gans, sailing on through the rain, maybe dropping off when the train stopped, to take under cover of the night, or behind some freight shed—he had done it all so many times himself.

Still he tried not to think of Dillon, for he could do so without a sense of self-reproach; it seemed like digging to relieve himself of a load; they had worked so long together.

Dillon's long, gaunt figure presented itself to his memory as he remembered how some old rope maid, a bit of candle in his hand, getting down into the cellar, pour the oil, and then memory would usually revert to the night when Dillon had stumbled against the candle—but not before Mason had seen in the glare of the explosion the setting of his jaw—and, pulling his rod, had fired him flat on the floor in the darkness.

Then the flight outside, the rose-colored flames from their revolvers as they fled down the race down the silent street—white sheep in the fields across the railroad tracks, and the bitter cold in the woods.

Interrupted Reveries

He shook his head as if to fling the memories from him. But Dillon's figure came back, now in the front rank of the company, marching across the hideous prison yard, his long legs breaking at the ankle as he walked, his head shaven, his face pasty.

Mason tried to escape these thoughts, but they persisted. He got a newspaper, but understood little of what he read, except one brief dispatch, which told of a tramp found cut in two beside the tracks, five hundred dollars' reward in his coat.

The dispatch wondered how a hobo could have so much money, and Mason guessed Mason; he would tell Gibbs, and they would have a laugh—their old laugh at the world above them.

Then they themselves would wonder—wonder which one of the boys it was; it might be weeks before the news would reach them in an authentic form.

He enjoyed for a moment his laugh at the stupid world, the world which could not understand them in the least, the world which shuddered in its ignorance of flesh.

Then he thought of Dillon again. Dillon had never refused him; he had not refused him that evening in northern Indiana when the sheriff and the posse came, armed with pitchforks and shotguns and old army muskets, had brought them to bay in the wheat fields; his ammunition had given out, but old Dillon, with only three cartridges left, had stood cursing and covering his retreat.

Mason was beginning to feel small about it, and yet—Dillon did not understand when he came back he would explain it all to him. This notion gave him some comfort, and he lighted his cigar, turned to his newspaper again and listened for the rain falling outside.

Suddenly there was a noise and Mason started. Was that old Dillon crouching there beside him, his face gleaming in the flicker of the dripping candle?

"Joe!" he exclaimed. "I'm getting nutty!"

He was troubled, for his head had now and then gone off that way in prison—Mason set his cigar down, but no longer tried to read. He heard the noise in the bathroom. In a moment the door opened and Gibbs appeared.

"Where's Kate?" he demanded.

"She went to bed half an hour ago," said Mason.

"Why—what's the excitement?"

"Eddie Deans here—come on out." Gibbs disappeared; the door closed.

'Just in Time"

Mason pondered; no wonder the place thrilled with excitement.

He had heard of Eddie Dean. Down in his mind's eye he pictured him, this man, of his amazing skill and cleverness, of the enormous amounts he made every year—made and spent. Dean had the fascination for Mason that is born of mystery—of the unknown. Mason's methods and methods of other big-mitt men described to him; he had heard long discussions of the telephone hangouts and beside camp fires in the woods, but he had never encountered, described; he could never grasp the details.

He could understand the common, ordinary thefts; he could see how a pickpocket by long practice learned his art, but the kind of work that Dean did had something occult in it. How a man could go out, wearing good clothes, and, without soiling his fingers, merely by talking and playing cards, make such sums of money—Mason simply could not realize it.

Surely it was worth while to have a look at him. He started out, then he remembered; he passed his hand over the stubble of hair that had been growing after the forty, he was beginning to take on fat.

His face was heavy, and despite the fact that he was twisted slightly out of shape—his knee must be disfigured—he did not look bad. He combed his hair, pulled it down to his eyebrows, and went out.

Eddie Dean, who stood at the bar in the blue clothes that perfectly exemplified the fashion of that Summer, was pointed out by the police lieutenant-rewards as a man somewhat above medium size, and now, at his ease was heavy, and despite the fact that he was twisted slightly out of shape—his knee must be disfigured—he did not look bad. He combed his hair, pulled it down to his eyebrows, and went out.

Mason, however, could not analyze; he only knew that he did not like the fellow.

Then he motioned impersonally to the bartender, who set down another wineglass, wiped it dexterously, and set it out with an elegant flourish and filled it. Mason lifted his glass and looked at Dean, who was saying:

Dean's History

The others in the party laughed. Bessie Gibbs, who was standing outside his own bar like a visitor, there was Nate Rosen, a gambler, dressed more conspicuously than Dean; a small man in gray, with strange pale eyes fastened always on Dean, and a third man in tweeds, larger than either, with broad shoulders, heavy jaw and a habitual scowl.

Beyond him, apart, with the truckling Dean's history was the monotonous one of most men of his kind. Having a boy's natural dislike for school, he had run away from home and joined a circus.

At first he fed the sick horses, then he was hired by one of the candy butchers and finally allowed to peddle candy. Then there he learned the art of short change, and when he had mastered this he sold tickets from a little satchel outside the tents; by the time he was 25 he knew most of the schemes by which the foolish, seeking to get something for nothing, are despoiled of their money.

He was an adept at cards; he knew mouse and he could work the shells; later he traveled about, cheating men in all kinds of games, and with his intuitive knowledge of human nature. He could go through a passenger train from end to end, reach and pick out his victims by their backs.

As he went through he would suddenly feel the balance, as if by the bursting of the seal in which his instinct was sealed.

His confederate, following behind, would note and remember. Later he would return to the car, and, with a word to the porter at whist or pedro or some other game. Dean would be one of the party.

He went to all large gatherings—political conventions, especially national conventions, conclaves, celebrations, world's fairs, the opening of any new city and the Mardi Gras, the floods of Alaska, and so on.

He had roamed all over the United States; he had been to Europe, and Cuba, and Mexico, and the West Indies, and had visited Hawaii; he boasted that he had been in every single country—"from St. Petersburg to Cape Breton" was the way he put it.

The atmosphere of the ballroom had been changed by the arrival of Dean. It lost its usual serenity and quivered with excitement. The deference shown to Dean was marked in the attitude of the men in his suite; it was marked, too, by the bartender's attitude, and even in that of Gibbs, though Gibbs was more quiet and self-contained, bearing himself, indeed, quite as Dean's equal.

DAILY PUZZLE PICTURE

What Breed of Poultry Is This?

ANSWER.

GO to one large picture in each issue of the BOSTON AMERICAN. Twenty dollars in gold will be given for the largest list of different words you can make from the letters in the picture. Prizes will be divided as follows: First prize of $10 ..... $10
Second prize 5
Third prize of $1 each 3
Total $20

Only one list accepted from each reader. Send lists separately each day, write your name and address plainly on each list and address to Puzzle Editor, BOSTON AMERICAN. No. 80 Summer street, with your best suggestions as to what you would like to see in the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

Where lists are equally correct the prizes will be given to those making the best suggestions.

Should there be more prize-winners in last week's contest, together with the final picture in this week's series, they will be printed in next Sunday's BOSTON AMERICAN.

CHOPPED PICKLE

IF any one wishes an excellent chopped pickle, then try this: Three pints green tomatoes, three pints ripe tomatoes, one cabbage, three pints onions, three peppers, three bunches celery (blanch in stalks).

Chop fine these ingredients, add one-half cup salt and let stand over night. Drain in the morning and add three pints vinegar, one pint sugar, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon cloves. Boil fifteen minutes.

MRS. T. A. LACEY,
No. 290 Broadway, Everett.

ENGLISH BRAWN

BOIL a pig's head and one pound of lean beef for about three hours. Season with one bay leaf, salt and pepper, and add one half a lemon. Line a mold with slices of hard-boiled eggs and pour the brawn in mold until all has set solid. Turn out and you have an excellent dish for home or party.

MRS. R. BLACKMORE.
No. 329 Columbus avenue, Boston.

TO CAN PEARS.

SELECT sound, perfect pears which are not very ripe, peel, cut in halves or quarters according to the size of the fruit, and cook in clear water. Prepare a syrup, allowing about one pound of fruit. Use twice as much water as sugar for the syrup. If the pears are hard steam a few moments before putting in the syrup. Put pears into the syrup and cook slowly until tender. Skin out into glass jars and cover with syrup, then seal.

MRS. RICHARD BURROWS,
Box 333, Shelterville, Conn.

CELERY SAUCE

WASH clean large bleached stalks of celery, cut in a pan and boil in clear water till quick; pour drawn butter over it and send to the table in covered dish, steaming hot.

Mrs. H. R. RICH.
No. 31 Spencer street, Dorchester.

CARAWAY COOKIES

TWO cups sugar, one cup shortening (butter and lard mixed), one cup of sweet milk, one teaspoon of soda and one and one half tablespoons of caraway seed; add enough flour to roll. Bake quickly.

Liberty street, Randolph.

HOT SAUCE

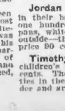
HAVE not as yet seen in your paper the following recipe which we have tried for many years and prefer to any other sauce: Chop separately eighteen large tomatoes, six large onions, six red peppers, medium size. Mix and add one cup sugar, five level tablespoons salt, three cups vinegar and cook all one hour.

MRS. J. JAMES.
No. 64 Westworth avenue, Lowell.

TOMORROW'S BEST BARGAINS IN BOSTON'S BIG STORES

R. H. White's will offer for a good value in a firm, black wool voile skirt, full side pleated, and finished at the bottom with wide and narrow bands of black taffeta. They are made over a drop skirt of extra quality black taffeta and have been reduced for to-morrow from $15.50 to $8.79.

Shirt's will offer to-morrow for $5 women's and misses' tourist coats, 42 inches long, half fitted back, double-breasted box front, regular $10 coats.



Bacon's will offer, in the cotton underwear department, flannelette petticoats in terms in colors—all ready to wear—at the bargain price of 75 cents. They are 39 cent values.

MacDonnell's will place on sale Friday morning at their Tremont Temple store a lot of real hair pompadours at $1.50. The hair goods department has been moved to their Tremont Temple store, and in the new location the first of the several many special inducements in the line of hair goods are offered.

Jordan Marsh Company will offer in their basement to-morrow at 49 cents, one hundred blue and white again sacques, white inside, blue and white mottled outside—the finest quality made—regular price 69 cents.

Timothy Smith Co. will offer you children's white lawn school aprons for 25 cents. These are made good and full, with ties in the back and ruffles over the shoulder and are regular 38-cent values.

Wolf's, My Clothier, will place on sale children's wool mixed suits at $3.50 quality for $2.98. They are plaid effects cut in full three-quarter lengths, velvet trimmed collar and cuffs.

Women's mixture skirts, in new and novel patterns, box and side plaited, styles or gored effects, will be on sale at Conrad's to-morrow for $1.95. Their regular value is $3.

An excellent scarf for the polished table or bureau are the Renaissance ones which Gilchrist's are offering at 25 cents. They are 18 inches wide, with centers of pure linen, and have been selling regularly for $1.69.

James A. Houston will place on sale Friday, in their underwear department, a lot of women's 50-cent drawers of cambric, nainsook or percale cut full, with 5S cents. Some of these are trimmed with fine hamburg and others are daintily trimmed with lace. These are values which cannot be replaced, owing to the present high prices of cotton.

An excellent bargain in suits may be found at Meyer Jonasson Co.'s to-morrow when they place on sale a small lot, including seventeen mixtures made with the popular Prince Chap coat and full pleated skirt with double fold around bottom, and six in plain gray. They are the regular $25 values, but because they are a little light weight they have been reduced to $18.75.

A DOUBLE CONSPIRACY

Being the Seventh in a Series of Startling Adventures of Zara, Woman of Mystery.

One Chapter of This Story Will Be Printed Every Day This Week Except Saturday. The Next to the Last Chapter Will Be Published Friday, and the Solution Will Appear in Next Sunday's Boston American. This Gives You All Day Saturday to Write Your Solution and Try for a Share in the $100 Weekly Prize Offer.

BY ASA ROLAND.

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner

CONTEST CONDITIONS

THIS story will run through the week. The final chapter, in which the solution will be solved, will be printed in next Sunday's BOSTON AMERICAN.

The only day on which no instalment of the story will appear will be Saturday. The next to the last chapter will be printed Friday, and then everybody will have until 6 p. m. Saturday in which to solve the mystery.

The person who solves the mystery most accurately will receive the first prize of $50.

If no one solves the mystery accurately, the one who comes nearest to a correct solution will receive the first prize.

REMEMBER

That this is a test of SKILL IN THINKING, not skill in writing. All you have to do to win the prize is to THINK OUT the solution of the mystery more clearly than somebody else. The literary merit of the answers will not be considered.

That in case two or more answers are equally correct, the prizes will be awarded ACCORDING TO THE POSTMARKS ON THE ENVELOPES, the one mailed first receiving the first prize, etc.

That persons living at a distance from Boston have just as good a chance to win prizes as those live right in Boston.

NO ANSWER POSTMARKED LATER THAN 6 P. M. SATURDAY WILL BE CONSIDERED.

Address all communications to PRIZE STORY EDITOR, BOSTON AMERICAN, No. 80 Summer street, Boston.

CHAPTER IV.

LEDGEWORTH and I started to our feet and started from the package to the workman. The package seemed to be alive. It bubbled and gave off a faint hissing as if it were filled with bonbons. The man's hands were capped with huge blisters covering his palms.

"Get some oil for your hands, John," cried Ledgeworth. "Quick man, what are you waiting for?"

"Confounded things are scalding!" returned the workman wringing his hands and evidently having lost his head.

Ledgeworth pressed a button on his desk and a clerk appeared.

"Hurry, John, to the shop and put some oil on his hands," he ordered. "Quick!"

"Well," I said, when we were alone, "John is sure it wasn't pretty now."

I kicked the package gingerly.

"What is it?" Ledgeworth was stooping, poking the thing with the point of a pen.

"It's——" I began, when Ledgeworth sprang to his feet.

"Look at that!" he cried, holding up the pen.

The point of the pen had vanished in a seum which was boiling like scalding hot water.

"That's what happened to your steel plates," I ejaculated. "It's simply filled with crystallized acid. The question is—who put the acid there?"

"The plumbers!" he returned quickly. "I'll have them arrested at once. They are here yet!"

Delay Arrest

"No you won't have them arrested," I said. "You will have no one arrested—at least for the present!"

"Why not?" he exclaimed, in surprise, "because you have something much more important to do just now." I returned. "You are going to call your partner into a conference and we are going to talk this thing over."

"Howard's out of town," he replied. "He is attending a conference with the other people looking to the absorption of our plant."

"He cannot close the deal without you, can he?" asked I.

"I told him to make the best terms he could," replied the shipbuilder, "but of course I reserved the right to sanction the deal."

"How do you know they are not at the bottom of this?" I asked.

"If you go off half shot like this they will try some other tactics. If they are at the bottom of it, they will rest easy. As for myself, I don't feel able to advise you on the spur of the moment. It is easier to see how the trick was done than to see who did it. I want time to think over the part of the mystery which I can see in every one of the men engaged on this hull."

"We pay off tomorrow at noon," he said. "You can watch them from the paymaster's window."

Many Plots

As I strode down the aisle from the yard, on leaving Ledgeworth, it was entirely at sea as to the true solution of the mystery. True, I had discovered, or thought I had, the method that had been used to wreck the Ledgeworth & Howard hulls. But that had not brought me any clue to the identity of the person who had used the acid, or had placed it where I had discovered it.

It seemed hardly possible that workmen in the yard had placed the acid in the ships. For, according to the firm, confirmed by the bearing of all the men with whom I had come in contact, the relations of the men with the interests of the firm were close and friendly.

Was it possible that a spy from the combination of ship builders was at work in the construction carrying out a scheme to depreciate the yard and thus reduce its purchase price and force it into their combination?

Or had the owners of the ships plotted the sinking of their boats in order to secure the insurance? Premiums on new craft were very low and almost any amount of insurance can be had, I reasoned. They were bewildering, the number of possibilities that surged through my mind, without evidence to back their existence.

"Any way," I concluded, "I can have the acid crystals examined and perhaps the nature of the acid will shed some light."

(To Be Continued To-morrow.)

Anty Drudge Goes Shopping on Washday.

Anty Drudge—"Is there anything I can get you downtown, Mrs. Weary? I am going shopping this afternoon."

Mrs. Weary—"What! Shopping on washday! Why, I've just got my clothes ready for the line."

Anty Drudge—"And mine are all ironed. I'm not a bit tired, either, so I'll spend the afternoon at the bargain counters. If you had washed the Fels-Naptha way, you could join me."

Fels-Naptha soap will make kitchen work easier, just as it does the washing of clothes. Fels-Naptha will clean anything that is cleanable, and do it far better and quicker than any other soap.

Try it on your pots, pans, dishes and other kitchen utensils. It will "cut" the grease quick as a wink and leave them bright and shiny. It will clean glassware and china, and polish them at the same time.

And because it will do this far better in cold or lukewarm water, there is no danger of breaking fragile glass and china by putting them in scalding water.

Kitchen sinks, shelves, cupboard and floor should all be scrubbed with Fels-Naptha. It whitens woodwork as well as cleans it, and neither roaches nor ants will infest a kitchen where the cleaning is regularly done with Fels-Naptha, and chips of the soap placed where they congregate.

FALSE KEY MEN ROB 3 HOMES AND A STORE

STEAL MONEY FROM BABY

The police of Cambridge are today busy trying to ferret out a gang of thieves who early this morning, between midnight and noon entered three flats and last night a general store in that city and in all instances got away with valuables.

Mrs. Esther Somes, who lives in a flat at No. 122 Berkshire street, East Cambridge, reported to the police that yesterday afternoon between the hours of 3 and 5 o'clock thieves by means of false keys entered her apartments and stole a gold watch with four chip diamonds set in the back. The watch she valued at $50.

The flat of Henry Barbarian, No. 748 Main street, Cambridgeport, was entered in the same manner in the afternoon and a gold watch, chain and fob, along with a child's bank containing $2.85 stolen.

From the flat of Henry O. Holmes, No. 84 Prospect street, Cambridgeport, a collection of old coins and a small amount of change was stolen from the dresser.

The general store of H. F. Barkley, No. 60 River street, Cambridge, was entered last night and cigars, stamps, other articles and $1.25 in cash from the money drawer were taken.

While Mrs. A. M. Grant, of No. 85 Armory street, Cambridgeport, was shopping in a store yesterday afternoon, her baby in its carriage, which she left on the sidewalk outside the door, was stolen and the thief slipped in and took the purse while she was busy making purchases.

There are no clues to any of these robberies.

MAN 57 PREPARING FOR COLLEGE COURSE

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 11.—Peter Murray, of Buena Vista, at the age of fifty-seven years, has gone to school to prepare for college. He is a student at Jefferson Academy, Canonsburg, and the teachers say he is one of their most diligent pupils. In his youth Murray had to work for a living and sacrifice his schooling. He has accumulated money till his large business interests, he says, demand that he be better educated.

GIRLS SCARE BOYS FROM TUFTS COLLEGE HE SAYS

PRESIDENT HAMILTON DECLARES THEY MUST BE TAUGHT IN SEPARATE CLASSROOMS.

That the boys and girls must be separately educated or Tufts College of Letters become a girls' school is the substance of Rev. Dr. Frederick W. Hamilton's first annual report as president of the college. He practically declares that girls are scaring away boys from Tufts. Discussing the failure of the School of Letters to share in the general growth of the college, he says:

"The average young man will not go to a co-educational institution if other things are anywhere near equal.

"The student who desires an A. B. degree very much prefers to go to an institution for men only. He is not comfortable with the women in the classroom, and in some things feels that he is at a disadvantage. In the courses in science the women often have the same feeling toward the men. We may regret the feeling as much as we like, but it exists and so must be reckoned with. It is not possible for Tufts College to conquer it or to reason the masculine youth out of it. If the present state of affairs continues to exist the College of Letters will become a girls' school, and that sooner than any of us realize.

"I am confident that there is one way in which the problem can be solved, and I am equally confident that there is no other. The future of the academic department of Tufts College, as a man's college, depends upon the immediate segregation of the women into a separate department or college.

"They should be educated separately. They should have their own dormitories, lecture rooms and chapel, their department should have some distinguishing name, and they should have their own dean. The instruction, however, should be given by the same faculty as the men. I am convinced that the result would be of advantage to all concerned."

RICH OMAHA LAWYER STRANDED IN MAINE

BIDDEFORD, Me., Oct. 10.—William Gaslin, 75 years old, a prominent railroad attorney of Omaha, Neb., was stranded in this city, having been obliged to leave a Boston bound passenger train on the B. & M. because he had been robbed in Portland of passes and a large sum of money.

MAY PEPPER SURRENDERS; PLANS FIGHT

Special to the Boston American.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Mrs. May Pepper Vanderbilt, wife of the wealthy Brooklyn dealer, for whose arrest a warrant has been out for a week on the charge of grand larceny, walked into the office of District Attorney Clarke in Brooklyn today and gave herself up.

Mrs. Pepper was accompanied by her husband and her sister. She declared that she had just returned from a lecturing tour in New England, and had only heard of the warrant for her arrest late yesterday. She declared that she had no wish to evade arrest, but was willing to fight the charges made by her divorce lawyer, Mr. Minerva Vanderbilt, to the end.

NIGHT SCHOOLS OPEN MONDAY

All of the Boston free evening schools will open for the year next Monday. There will be five high, fourteen elementary and five drawing schools.

The rapidly increasing population in congested districts had necessitated several changes this Fall. The Phillips Brooks to be opened instead of the Mather School in Dorchester and the Comins in place of the Sherwin School in Roxbury. The Christopher Columbus School has been established to cope with the first growing registration in the North End. The Charlestown High School, which was formerly assembled in the Copley Schoolhouse, will open in the new Charlestown High Building.

TIGERS' CATCHERS ONLY WEAK SPOT, JOSS SAYS

(BY ADRIAN JOSS.)

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—The second game of the world's series was in many respects a great improvement over the first and while it resulted in a victory for the Cubs, the game itself showed that the clubs are evenly matched.

The Detroit sluggers, Crawford and Cobb, were handicapped by being forced to hit a southpaw, which partially accounted for the Tigers' low score, while the Cubs' two runs, scored in the fourth, were helped along by good base running.

Jennings's change of catchers did not stop Chance's men on the paths at all, and they ran wild every time they got a man on base, stealing almost at will.

Dutch Schaefer in Hard Luck.

Schaefer certainly hit in touch luck. Twice, with Jones on first, he and Ivey tried the hit and run play and both times "Germany" hit right over the bag, forcing Jones the first time and being thrown out himself the second.

Rossman certainly did even the subject getting three hits over for three bases and four times at bat. They were all good hard drives. He really had four hits but lost one in a peculiar way. Cobs opened the inning a single and "Ross" got to two attempts to bunt, hit a short fly to right.

It looked as if Schulte was going to get it, so Cobb went down from first and Schulte ran the coach inside the canvas and stopped short, giving the ball on a short bound and throwing to second, forcing "Ty" to the bag.

O'Leary was the bright star in a fielding way. His chances were all hard, and the one that looked good to a stand still to of Kling's hit over second. He and Rossman both made fine plays at Stanfield's hit, just previous to this, Rossman getting the bottom by rescuing high and taking the throw with his gloved hand.

Crawford made a fine play on Kling's line drive, which looked good for three bases. The ball seemed to hit dead straight over his head, but Sam jumped while running and pulled it down, doubling Chance off second.

Sheckard's Contribution.

Sheckard's contribution to the world's series of fame is nearly complete. He came tearing in on Payne's line drive to left, getting the ball about nine inches from the ground, a wonderful catch for so late in the game. Johnny Kling again demonstrated what a wonderful catcher he is, and Pfeister pitched a superb and generally all-around work perfect.

Tinker's steal of third, which gave the Cubs what proved to be the winning run, was a clever piece of work by both him and Slagle, who was at the bat. As Tinker started to steal Slagle made a bluff to bunt, which fooled Coughlin in just far enough so he couldn't get through on time for Jones to be slid to the bag. The work of both pitchers was good, Pfeister pitching a steady game. Mullin was a trifle unsteady at times, but he pegged well in the pinch of the second, when, after forcing in a run with no one out, he struck out Archer and Slagle and made Sheckard hit a grounder to Schaefer.

Schaefer also pulled Mullin out of a close fix in the first inning. Slagle had reached third with none out when Sheckard hit high fly to the second basemen, who caught it, forcing the base runner back to third, stepped off the bag "Schnei" snapped it to Coughlin, who touched Slagle as he made a desperate effort to slide back to safety.

If Archer, who is likely to catch today, can stop the Cubs on bases, the Tigers look like winners, even though, as outside of this department of the game they seem to be the better team.

THE TIGER IS A LITTLE SCARRED TO-DAY, BUT STILL FIGHTING.

Umpires—Emslie and Connolly.

It's the big feature in the Hub championship series today when the Doves and the Pilgrims meet in a double-header at the Huntington avenue grounds and grapple in a couple of the hardest fought contests of the season.

The entertainment will start at 1:30 o'clock and last till darkness comes, as it's a safe prediction that the sport will take extra innings to decide by the way the teams are showing each other.

The Pilgrims have got two games to their credit, which is a big margin to overcome, but both victories have been by the closest shaves and just a turn of the wheel of fortune gives the Doves the edge in the matter.

Big cy Young and Little "Cy" may meet in one of the games, as both are said to be in line for the ride. Either will start for his home fan the West directly after he pitches one more game for his team, and the old pair here would like to just add one more to his string of scalps to make his trip a pleasant one.

Morgan and Lindeman will have the honors to share in the other one of the double games.

KLING'S FINE WORK IS GREAT AID TO CUBS

By Boston American Leased Wire.

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—Johnny Kling, the Cubs' wonderful catcher, is largely responsible for the championship of the world to the Chicago National League Club. It seems reasonable to predict right here that the world's series is all over if the Cubs have the four victories tabbed to their credit, they will have. Johnny Kling to thank for it more than any other one thing on the team.

Kling is wonderful. He stayed off defeat in the opening game and saved the second encounter so that the Cubs were able to get off in the lead of the fight between Chicago and Detroit on the local lot tener. Kling's throwing, his judgment and his ability to steady the pitchers in the places have been the wonder and admiration of the thousands and thousands of spectators who have watched the two encounters.

Kling Out-Classes Rivals.

Kling so far outclasses the Detroit backstops that they look weak and unfit for major league ball. In the first two battles Detroit's best backstop has failed to put over some of their daring base-running tricks that they have worked on the other teams in the American League and they have been found helpless. Schmidt and Kling has picked off the speedy runners of the Tigers just when they were getting a minute-man in battle. His aim has been true and his speed perfect, and he has not dropped them one after the other in a surprising manner.

It is hard to sit in the grandstand or in the bleachers and realize that Kling's work has meant so much to the Cubs' team. It has probably won one game for them and saved them from defeat in the second. Should it another way, it might be said that Detroit's inability to stop the Chicago base runners from stealing has cost them the game each day.

When one thinks that it is possible for a single player to be of so much worth in sequence in a series for the baseball championship of the world, it is easy to understand why one man may command such an enormous salary for just playing ball. The win.

AUTOIST TYLER TO DEFY NANTUCKET SELECTMEN

By J. C. KERRISON.

Since Judge Sherman set aside the verdict of the lower court which found Frank J. Tyler guilty of illegally operating an automobile on the highways of Nantucket, and which set aside the local ordinances regulating motor traffic, the selectmen of that town have enacted a similar ordinance as the one in question. If there be no objections against the same filed with the Highway Commissioners, or the ruling be set aside by the commission, then the ordinances will become effective in due season. However, there promises to be a well-defined objection, the individuals of the same being displayed in the appended letter sent out yesterday by Mr. Tyler:

To the Selectmen of Nantucket:

On Tuesday, October 1, Judge Sherman, of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, rendered a decision upholding my contention that your automobile exclusion order could have no standing in the courts of this Commonwealth. To anyone other than seven it must be apparent that Nantucket, being a part of this Commonwealth, has a legal right to deprive a citizen of his rights than has any other section of Essex county, and that you have no right to be closed to any legal method of travel.

In the first two months, Chicago have stolen more bases of all but one of their rivals, been clean out since August 1 and the big edged while a man was on third, so that "Germany" Schaefer has had to be content with a single.

The Cubs won the game yesterday by opportune hitting and by taking advantage of Detroit's poor fielding and wild pitching. There was not one department of the game in which the Tigers did not excel, and although the latter whacked out the same number of hits as did the Cubs, they failed, a bit at the right time to sometimes when they drove home but one more tally, while the same number of wheels for the Cubs tallied the runs that were needed to win.

Broad street, North and South Watkinstreets, Federal street, Centre street, Union street, Orange street, Main street and the Milestone road.

(Signed) Selectmen of Nantucket,

JOHN M. WINSLOW, Secretary."

"Now anyone familiar with the situation knows that this order is in effect an absolute extension of automobiles from the island. Your lion covers every avenue of travel. There is not a steamboat wharf, every possible avenue of approach to the State highway, and even the State highway between Nantucket and Siasconsett as well.

Your contention is, judging from this and your former order, that I have not the right to dictate the kind of vehicle that shall be used for conveyance over Massachusetts roads. If I happen to land at Nantucket and desire to be allowed to Siasconset, you say to me, 'You must engage one of Selectman Pitman's livery teams or one from some other of the numerous livery men of the island.' If I am unable to see any reason why I should be compelled to engage one of Selectman Pitman's livery teams or one of the Selectmen—at an expense of $5 if I take the right road and $5.50 if I take the left.

"Notwithstanding, there are some two hundred or more livery horses on the island, and I was not able to find one late in August that I could safely for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals would allow driven about the streets of Nantucket.

"I can see no justification for the order I have in this above would impose, or for the outlay of $2.50 by one man or $5 by the other, as the only humanitarian means of making the trip from Nantucket to Siasconset. The Automobile Law, as I am hereby excluded from the particular roads and ways in the town of Nantucket, viz., the road the poor, overworked nags crow of a horse) at an expense of about $6 per day, a gain of my destination in Siasconset.

"There are hundreds of people who spend their Summers on Siasconset who want this method of transportation, and there are miles of Nantucket roads that were ever created, as barren of houses as the North Pole of sunflowers, a large portion of which you would see covered with beautiful Summer cottages, if you would but hold out the glad hand.

"The Maxwell automobile will prove the greatest carbond Nantucket ever had. It is intend to give Siasconset people a quick, cheap and economical method of reaching their homes from the steamboat wharf in Nantucket, and if you will join me we will make your bleak, unpeopled shores blossom like the rose. Selectman Pitman and all the other livermen, instead of being driven out of the livery business and forced to quarters in 'our back yard,' will find profitable use for a much larger number of livery horses than they now own for short pleasure drives to places of interest in all parts of the island.

"If you don't care to join my hand in wagon of prosperity, of course you are entitled to your own views. I want you know, Come on!"

Here is one more word in closing. Your Maxwell Automobile Exclusion Order has no more legal effect than a bottle of nursing babe. I shall in a short time drive my car over the public highways of Nantucket to Siasconset, and I will be arrested by either Mike Sebesco or Joseph Pitman and all the other liverym

CROWDS ENJOY THE FOOD FAIR EXHIBITION

School Exhibition by the Children Is Attracting Much Attention.

TO-DAY IS SWEDISH DAY

Every exhibitor who has a display at the Food Fair is expressing great satisfaction with the outlook. Hundreds of men, women and children attended the Fair yesterday.

Exhibitors have catered to the children this year more than in any previous event and the children's theatre attracts hundreds of them daily.

This is the first time in the history of the American Humane Educational Society that they have given a public exhibition. Their booth which is in the top of the Mechanics' building is prettily supplied with over twenty thousand names of children who are members of the different bands of mercy throughout the country. Angell is the president of the society. Over five hundred children have pledged themselves to this society on the opening night of the Fair.

Retail Grocers Hold Reception.

Yesterday there was a complimentary reception to the wives of the members of the Massachusetts Retail Grocers and Provision Dealers Association. Mrs. Fred-rick Humphrey of Weymouth and Mrs. William H. Hutchinson of Arlington received the guests in the reception room of the woman's department.

There was a cooking demonstration at 1:45 p. m., followed by a concert by William Bain on "Travels in other Lands." At 3:30 there was a cooking lecture.

To-day is scheduled as one of the most interesting days of the Fair and has been set apart as Swedish day. Miss Anna Lawrence will be in charge of the rooms of life, and manners of the people of that country. At 1:45 p. m. there will be a cooking demonstration which will continue throughout the week.

Swedish Day is on To-day.

The Swedish Consul Mr. Birger Rosenquist and Mrs. Rosenquist will be the guests of the afternoon. At 3 p. m. members of the Swedish Choral Club of which Miss Sigrid Cederroth is president, will appear in national costume and will act as ushers. Miss Anna Gullfraison, who has charge of the program for the day, will tell stories of the music and the folk lore of Sweden. Miss Gullfraison, a young Swedish woman will appear in costume and will give a grouge of folk lore songs. At 3:30 p. m. there will be a reception by the members of the Esse Quam Videri Club. At 8 p. m. there will be a concert by the United States Marine Band in the balcony of the Main hall.

Poor Elephant=Poor Voter

Both Are Led by the Ear. Neither Knows His Strength. Both Need Pity

We use our eyes every second of the day. We use our ears less often, OUR BRAINS still less often.

Therefore, a picture talking to the eye tells us a truth more impressively and quickly than any written words.

The pictures in this column present a truth that demands the attention of every man who votes in the United States.

You can see in countries where elephants do the work a man, or even a little child, with a sharp hook leading a monstrous elephant in any direction.

The great creature weighing tons trembles with fear when he gets a severe order from some little brown-skinned boy weighing sixty pounds. He fears the sharp hook, he doesn't like the pricking sensation, he hasn't the slightest conception of his own immense power. He does as he is bid, goes whither he is led.

To see a little boy prodding, bullying, controlling an elephant is a comic sight. Those to whom it is new find it difficult to get used to it. They cannot understand the humility which induces the elephant to kneel when ordered, to raise his trunk as told, to slave all day and stand in one spot all night, ALWAYS IN FEAR OF THAT TINY HUMAN CREATURE, THAT ONE BLOW OF HIS TRUNK WOULD CRUSH TO DEATH.

You see the picture of that elephant in this column. You see another picture. The other picture represents greater power, infinitely greater intelligence, and at the same time greater, more pathetic SUBMISSION.

The voting public of the United States is the most gigantic force in the world. There is no limit to the things it could do, IF IT WOULD DO THEM.

Combined for good, combined for their own protection, progress and prosperity, the voters of the country represent a giant power, quite inconceivable.

But as the mahout with his sharp iron leads the big elephant, so the dishonest, miserable political boss with his organization leads the great voting body.

Human beings have fought for the right to govern themselves for many long, dreary, brutal centuries. They fought desperately in this country for self-government, for the right to vote, and to share in the making and applying of laws.

We have the vote here. WHAT DO WE DO WITH IT? How does the giant voting power use its strength? Under what conditions does it go to the ballot box?

It goes, LED BY THE EAR BY THE LITTLE DISHONEST POLITICAL BOSS OF THE NEIGHBORHOOD. AND THIS LITTLE DISHONEST INDIVIDUAL LEADS THE GREAT VOTING POWER IN ACCORDANCE WITH ORDERS FROM BIGGER SCOUNDRELS IN BIGGER PLACES.

We pity the elephant who submits to such indignity at the hands of so miserable a little creature. But at least the elephant's keeper and prodder can say truthfully, "I take care of the elephant; I feed him. I wash his skin with oil, draw thorns out of his feet; he couldn't get along without me, now that he is tame."

What does the political boss, the keeper of the great public franchise, do for the enormous force that he controls? NOTHING. He uses the voters, he sells them to the corporations or to anybody that will buy the votes. He steals their votes if he pleases, and steals their money after the votes are dishonestly counted.

How many of you have any opinion about the men for whom we are told to vote? How many of us have the slightest idea as to how our votes will be used?

When you cast your vote at any time, ask yourself: "What had I to do with choosing the man I am voting for? What do I know as to his opinions? Is it probable that he will serve me and the general public, or that he will serve the boss that chooses him, the boss who is leading me up by the ear to vote for him?

Question yourself before you vote. It isn't mere voting that makes the man. IT'S THE THOUGHTFUL VOTING. THE DETERMINATION TO MAKE YOUR VOTE COUNT.

Since you are compelled to admit that one of the old parties is a boss-owned party, allowing the voter in Massachusetts no share in government, and the other old party is hopelessly split between mob rule and trust corruption, TRY TO VOTE INDEPENDENTLY.

IF YOU FIND AN INDEPENDENT CANDIDATE, VOTE FOR HIM, IF ONLY AS A PROTEST AGAINST THE SYSTEM THAT THESE PICTURES ILLUSTRATE.

It is shameful for intelligent men, having struggled for the ballot, and got it, to make themselves the mere automata of unscrupulous political bosses. This country needs GOVERNMENT FOR THE PEOPLE, AND IT HASN'T GOT GOVERNMENT BY THE PEOPLE. But it is going to establish popular government; it is going to compel the election of men that will represent those that cast the ballots, AND NOT THE CORPORATIONS THAT OWN THE POLITICAL BOSSES. This work of reconstruction of government must be done by thoughtful, earnest men, and you should be among them.

THE STENOGRAPHER

Discusses With the Bookkeeper That Missouri Man Who Is Advertising for a Squat, Fat Wife

By Dorothy Dix

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal Examiner

"WHAT do you think of the Missouri man whose specifications for a wife call for a squat, fat lady?" inquired the Bookkeeper.

"Oh, he's Solomon all right, all right," replied the Stenographer. "He knows what is the real prize package in the matrimonial lottery, and if men would marry by the pound and less by the yard we shouldn't hear of so much domestic infelicity and hair pulling."

"How do you frame up that proposition?" asked the Bookkeeper.

"On the simple ground that you can't be stylish and beautiful and comfortable at the same time," returned the Stenographer, "and that when a man ties up with a living picture he generally gives a double hitch to the halter about his neck.

"Humph," grunted the Bookkeeper.

Cause of Divorce

"NONE of the wise ones seem to have gotten next to the fact," went on the Stenographer, "but the increase in divorce is entirely due to the Gibson Girl."

"The one a man marries, or the peerless creature with a peroxided pompadour that he meets afterward?" queried the Bookkeeper.

"The one he marries," answered the Stenographer, "you see the long, lanky Gibson girl has made the tall, thin, slim woman who is nothing but a bag of bones the fashionable thing to wives, and every man who wanted to marry has been breaking his neck to get that kind of a woman to trot with him to the altar. For the past ten years every time a fat, short woman has caught a husband it has been in answer to prayer, and a special dispensation from Heaven.

"You'll never find a real amiable, jolly, healthy woman with a natural straight front figure. Such a woman can bant, and do physical exercise stunts, and be pounded into a pulp by a masseur, but as long as she is sweet-tempered, and happy, and contented, she will keep fat.

"It takes a woman who is a real first-class, A No. 1 free-hand worrier to fret the flesh off of her bones, and likewise off of her husband's anatomy. An ability to nag and suspicion things is the only genuine, never-fail reducer, and that's why married women are thinner as a class than single ones."

"Maybe you are right," assented the Bookkeeper.

Knows His Business

"OH, of course, I am right," retorted the Stenographer, "and that's why I think the Missouri man who wants to marry a short, fat, squat woman knows his business. To begin with, every pound of fat is that much of a testimonial that such a woman is easy-going and good-natured. It is also a never-failing indication that she has a good digestion and well-ordered nerves, and the bright, refulgent jewel of family life in a wife whose stomach as well as her heart is in the right place.

"Then the fat, squat woman is built by nature to look up to her husband, and she's so grateful to any man for falling in love with her that she is only too glad to spend her life in adoring and admiring him. Furthermore, she knows she isn't strong on looks and that she has got to make good by her performances, and so she makes the headliner housekeeper of the community. All the champion cooks and managers are women who have to have ready-made skirts let out at the waist, and cut off at the bottom."

"And," mused the Bookkeeper, "if you married a squat, fat wife you would never have to agitate yourself by fearing that some better looking man would try to win her away from you."

"Well," replied the Stenographer tartly, "even to have a settled cook in these days of strenuous servants is something."
